

Pleasanton church plans viewed today

PLEASANTON — Members of Community Presbyterian Church will get a look at the plans for a new sanctuary and education building on their Mirador Drive site today.

Lew Helgeson of the building committee will show artists' conception drawings of the interior and exterior and a three dimension mockup of the site.

The nearly 10,000 square feet of floor space will cost an estimated $500,000 or a little less, said Helgeson. That assumes a great deal of volunteer labor from church members on such things as sidewalks, fences, and landscaping.

The 100 year old sanctuary on Neal Street will be refurbished to fire safety standards so the congregation can lease out the building to a new congregation which needs a sanctuary.

Deafening 'cry' on taxing base seen on appeals

Alameda County Bureau
OAKLAND — Warm up the calculators and typewriters.

Property taxpayers throughout the county will be able to file assessment appeals starting next month.

The county's Assessment Appeals Board, more technically known as the local branch of the Board of Equalization, will open its proceedings here July 18, "from and after which time" they will listen to what promises to be a record barrage of taxpayer complaints.

Local property owners must file appeals between July 2 and 5 p.m. Sept. 15, according to board clerk William Mehrwein.

Given the outpouring of indignation expressed this spring when "notices of value" were mailed to homeowners, the official cry should be deafening.

Assessors office personnel reported a record barrage of phone calls and in person complaints in the first few weeks.

By state law, the assessor pegs a home's "full cash value" at the going market rate. Twenty-five per cent of that figure is the "assessed value" from which the homeowner's exemption, if any, is deducted.

The "full cash value" is defined as the price a "willing buyer and willing seller" would agree to if the home were sold.

The assessor's office estimates property values in the county shot up 11 to 15 per cent last year because of skyrocketing inflation in the home market.

Hence it's futile to complain that the "assessment" will force the owner from the home, or that the owner does not want to sell the house.

And it's dangerous to ask for a reduction if an identical house down the street just sold for, say, $80,000, when the assessor has pegged yours at $72,500.

Once under consideration, the appeals board can increase the assessment.

Air service loss looms

Livermore's protest late and missing

LIVERMORE — This city may have waited just a bit too long to effectively protest to the public utilities commission a plan by California Air Commuter Company to stop its Livermore operations.

Cal Air, which has 16 scheduled stops in Northern California and Reno, filed a notice with the PUC April 21 that it intends to discontinue operations after 60 days in Livermore, Fort Bragg, Ukiah, Lakeport and Santa Rosa.

Although city officials say they sent an official protest to the PUC last week, PUC officials yesterday told The Times they have seen no such document.

"I would think anyone protesting would have done so much earlier," said PUC Transportation Analyst Ronald Luckenbach. "We should have had it in the first 30 days to really act on the protest."

"We heard there is a protest coming," said Edward Cole of the PUC Air Transportation Division, "but we haven't received anything official on it."

Cole said the PUC procedure, upon receipt of such a protest, is to have a staff review. Then, if it has merit, hearings are held.

"I don't know that we could order them (Cal Air) to continue service," said Luckenbach, noting any hearing must be conducted before the 60 day deadline which ends June 20.

"I'm not saying we can't act," he added. "We haven't attempted to prove their operation is not profitable because no protest was received."

Cal Air's local operations have faded from view in the past few months, with complaints of zero activity since the end of February. Many of Cal Air's customers have been forced to find other transportation, such as Landeck Aviation which operates a flight school and an air taxi service out of the Livermore airport.

Olof Landeck, who says his business has steadily increased in the past six years, told The Times several companies have tried unsuccessfully to operate airline commuter services with stops in Livermore.

"I saw this trend long before they came here," he said about problems Cal Air had with scheduling, landing in overcast weather and stranded passengers.

Each company that has come along, he said, promoted the airport and increased his own business. The secret to his own success is that Landeck is stationed at the local airport and is available when people need him without relying on a set schedule, he said.

Landeck, who has an average of five flights — and sometimes as many as 15 — per day, said he was once approached by Cal Air to conduct the commuter service as a joint venture, but nothing came of it.

— by Neil Heilpern

Olof Landeck has seen commuter airlines come and go at the Livermore Airport, but his flight school and air taxi service don't seem to be hurting like Cal Air which doesn't want to stop here any more.

Music recital today

The Community Music Studio will present its annual student recital in the Veteran's Auditorium on Fifth and L Streets in Livermore today at 2 p.m.

The program will include young pupils performing piano duets and intermediate students playing piano works of the great composers. Vocalists Mary Lentzner, Lucille McPherson and Cynthia Rawls will sing solos.

Admission to the program is free and open to the public.

Demos to quiz council

The Pleasanton-Livermore Democratic Club will feature three local city council members Tuesday, 8 p.m. at the Pleasanton Hotel, for a question-and-answer session on city council etiquette.

Guests include Livermore Mayor Helen Tirsell and a fellow council member, Marshall Kamena, and Ken Mercer, councilman from Pleasanton.

The public is invited.

Police uniforms change

Clothes make the cop — or at least they help. That's why Pleasanton Police Department unveiled the latest in peace officer fashions Friday, and surprisingly, it's a return to an old standard.

Officers in Pleasanton are returning to traditional blue uniforms Monday, following the lead of other departments like like Livermore and Hayward.

The change was prompted by a vote of Pleasanton police officers.

Mt. Diablo traffic woes

Residents along a stretch of road leading to Mt. Diablo live in terror of fast drivers and problem drinkers.

In fact, they're saying Mt. Diablo is no longer a place to take the family because young people have made it their carousing grounds.

Contra Costa Sheriff's Department hasn't received many calls about the problem, but area supervisor Eric Hasseltine says he's heard of the complaints.

For details, see page 7.

Plutonium's air delivery is protected with priority

LIVERMORE — This city "may not adopt a policy of regulating plutonium shipments through Livermore Municipal Airport that interferes with plutonium shipments of ERDA," according to an opinion City Attorney Gary Reiners is scheduled to report to city council Monday.

Reiner's report notes that although the city has the inherent authority to regulate the introduction of hazardous materials into the city's territory, the plutonium flights by the Energy Research Development Administration have been preempted by state and federal authority.

He cites federal statutes which exempt plutonium shipments from local controls if the substance is essential for national defense.

He does not rule out, however, seeking ERDA compliance with its own regulations and timetables.

In other business, council will:

— consider the city's $14,450 share of $331,430 coming to Alameda County jurisdictions from the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1976. The funds are provided for establishment of a "Safer Off-Systems Road Program."

— consider council support for the annual Sommerfest program.

— review a report on bicycle and horse trails by the Congress of Valley Agencies, as well as consider COVA's request for participation.

— consider bids for Maple Street reconstruction.

Protest wave builds on Dublin Boulevard

DUBLIN — Dublin beholders don't consider a county transfer trash dump a thing of beauty along San Ramon Valley Boulevard between Amador Valley Boulevard and Silvergate Drive.

The area was fenced last January to keep the general public from dumping refuse there, according to Charles Cathcart. He is supervisor number two of the Alameda County Road Department.

The intermediate dump site also saves street sweepers an added 10-mile drive to the central dump on Vasco Road each time their trucks become loaded.

Weekly collections at the temporary dump ground are scheduled to keep the area as clean as possible, Cathcart explained.

Dave Burton, Dublin Chamber of Commerce vice-president, said he is going to seek approval from chamber directors to send a letter to Alameda County Supervisor Valerie Raymond asking her to assist in getting the trash dump removed.

Burton is also the chamber board member responsible for community betterment.

He said, "It is incredulous to me that the county would take a so-called scenic road where people aren't even allowed to put up signs and use it for an open dump. This is one of our main streets and we should be very concerned that the county hasn't thought anymore of it than to use it as a dumping ground."

Burton pointed out there are more isolated, less trafficked areas in Dublin that would serve the purpose better.

Frank Borgess, superintendent of Alameda County Road Department, said he had had a couple of Dublin residents call thanking the county for putting in the trash site.

Borgess said the county road department might consider moving it. "But where?" he asked. "That's the hard part."

New rules?

Tobacco and Firearms has published a set of proposals intended to make vintners back up claims they make to consumers on their wine labels.

Essentially, the changes are aimed at tightening claims on wines showing a place of origin.

If a wine listed a county or state, 75 per cent of the wine would have to come from there. A specific location, like the Livermore Valley, would require 85 per cent. And if labeled a specific vineyard, 95 per cent of the wine would have to originate from those limited vines.

Additionally, "varietal" designation, like "Sauvignon Blanc" or "Petite Sirah," would mean at least 75 per cent of the wine came from that particular grape.

If two or more grapes are listed, the percentage of each would have to be shown and total 100 per cent.

A vintage year would mean 95 per cent of the grapes would have been harvested in that year, and the area of origin would have to be listed.

See Wine, pg. 2

The special preview showing of art, photography and floriculture exhibits at the Alameda County Fairgrounds is the big event being discussed by members of the Mulberry Branch, Children's Hospital Inc. and their spouses, John and Irene Noonan (left), Peter and Estelle Newcomb (center) and Bud and Marcie Ellis. The preview, sponsored by the Alameda County Fair Assoc., will be held Saturday, June 25 from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Fairgrounds. Proceeds will benefit the Mulberry Branch, a women's charity organization. For tickets or information, call Mrs. Ellis at 447-6252.

County fair slates champagne preview

Sipping champagne, sampling hors d'oeuvres and strolling through fragrant gardens will highlight a champagne preview of the Alameda County Fair, Pleasanton.

The preview is 7 - 10 p.m. June 25 and will also feature a sneak look at the photography and art work which will be on display for the two weeks of the fair.

Open to the public, the preview is sponsored by the Alameda County Fair, assisted by Mulberry Branch for the benefit of Children's Hospital Medical Center in Oakland. Tickets are available from Mrs. John Noonan (443 - 6044 evenings), Mrs. B.L. Ellis (447-6252) or Mrs. Peter Newcomb (846 - 3776.)

Transportation will be provided from the parking lot to the Fairgrounds where party-goers will be greeted by Mulberry members and their husbands for an evening of relaxation and an opportunity to have a sneak view of three departments which will be on display during the June 26 - July 10 fair.

Providing background music will be Lou Jacklich, strolling accordionist.

Guests will be able to enjoy, at their leisure, 20 garden displays which will be competing for prizes based on overall excellence, best design, water effects and adherence to the international theme.

Fine Arts Department and Agriculture feature exhibits will also be open to the group.

Pleasanton police don basic blue uniforms

PLEASANTON — If you get pulled over by a person wearing a blue uniform, you are not about to be drafted into the Navy.

It's only a Pleasanton police officer modeling his new uniform. Or, more likely, giving you a $50 speeding ticket.

Beginning tomorrow, the 28-person force trades in its tan-colored suits for the old-fashioned, more popular — and less expensive — blue outfit.

Officers recently voted to follow the trend of other departments back to the traditional blue uniforms. Livermore made the change a couple of years back, and the Hayward force went blue last year.

The California Highway Patrol, and police departments in San Leandro, Berkeley and Concord are the only holdouts still grasping their tan duds, says Lt. Dave Freeman.

"Blue is becoming more widely accepted. It offers more styles, and they have more in stock. The price is lower, too," Freeman says.

A summer-weight tan uniform goes for about $71. Winter threads can hit $100.

In contrast, the new blue dacron polyester costs $50 in the summer style. A wash and wear shirt is also available, and at cheaper cost than the previous fashion.

The blue winter outfit, considered the full dress uniform, can be purchased for about $80. It is all wool.

Officers made their decision and negotiated with the union to get an advance on the $140 yearly uniform allowance. Instead of trying to maintain the old uniform, the switch to a newer model will temporarily slow the cost of upkeep.

A weekend of heavy arrests can quickly take its toll on the officer's wallet. A shirt torn by a drunk, rugged sprints through prickly underbrush pulling at the trousers while chasing a burglary suspect, or a fellow officer spilling coffee on another's lap in the late hours of the graveyard shift. In each case, the officer pays.

Freeman said the uniform allowance will increase to $180 in the future.

Wine label data to detail origin

Earlier proposals to put a federal seal on wines were scrapped.

While the overall plan would tighten labeling in other states, it would sometimes fall short of California's stricter laws. Hence the mixed reaction from vintners.

"Overall, the BATF has taken what I consider a fairly reasonable approach," says Wente Brothers' Eric Wente.

He's pleased they've corked the "seal" approach, since wine makers feared the stamp would lend an air of superiority to what could have been inferior wines.

The percentage criteria designating place of origin is "acceptable," he feels. And while he likes the 75 per cent "variety" requirement, he's leary of two-variety complications.

Current law requires only 51 per cent of a "variety" wine to be made from the named grape.

Stately Joe Concannon hesitates to comment on the proposals without having seen them.

But, like nearly all family-run wineries in the state, he's happier with stricter labeling.

Most of his "variety" wines are 100 per cent the named grape. But quite often the vintner wants latitude to blend a wine for a certain taste, complexity or life.

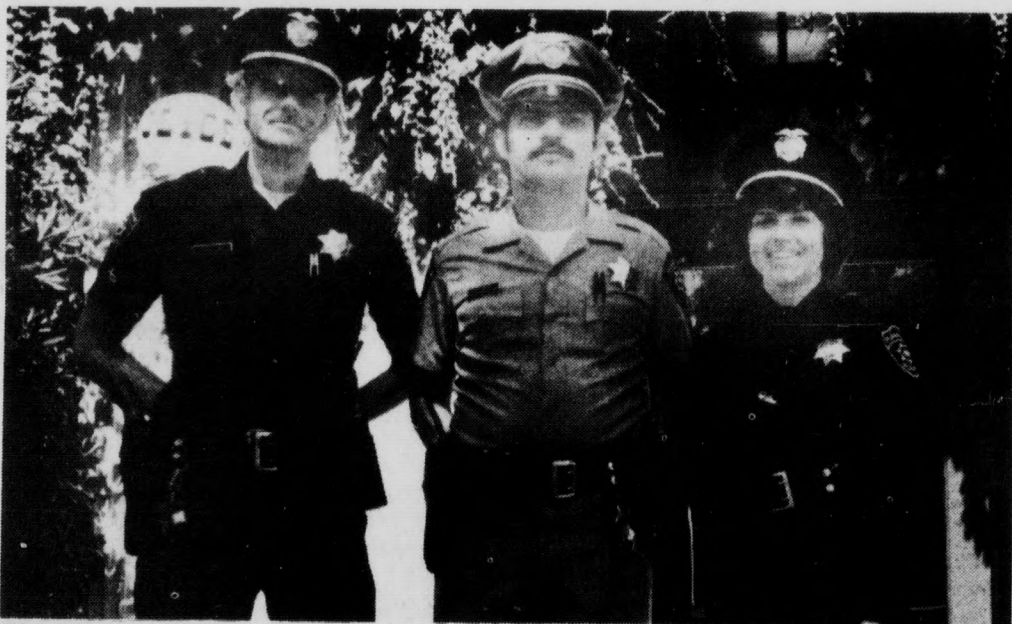

Both may address another round of hearings scheduled for this August in San Francisco.

Wineries throughout the state, especially family-run affairs, have been trying to improve the "truth in labeling" criteria now used.

Those more interested in production and profits than in preserving a tradition of excellence are often prone to importing inferior grapes to the state's more famed regions and borrowing the famous appellation.

Local vintners deplore the idea.

Financial experts warn of home buying pitfalls

With housing costs soaring out of sight, consumers have to shop more carefully than ever to get the most for each of the thousands of dollars they pay for a home.

Financial experts used to advise spending from two to two and a-half times your gross income for a house. They also suggested allowing the equivalent of a week's income for monthly housing payments.

Today, however, the cost of running the house may be even more important than the cost of buying it. In a recent newsletter, Citibank, the nation's second-largest commercial bank, told of a couple in the Northeast whose monthly maintenance payments doubled from 1972 to 1977. The heating bill went from $38 to $83 a month; insurance went from $28 to $47; electricity from $25 to $45; water from $8 to $15; real estate and school taxes from $120 to $250.

It is essential, therefore, to base your buying on the amount you can afford to spend each month for both mortgage and upkeep.

everything on a monthly basis. Include installment debts, insurance, food, clothing, health care, savings, recreation, hobbies, vacation, contributions, pocket money and extras such as alimony. Do not include rent, utilities or other housing costs. Subtract spending from income, and you'll know how much you can afford to pay each month.

Valley highs say 'bye' to 1,500 graduates

Foothill's first

This silhouette seemed to dramatize the historical occasion as Foothill High School in Pleasanton graduated its first four year students on campus Friday. The class message "I will never lose your precious gift. It will always be that way," seemed appropriate.

Youths complete another chapter

Four of the Valley's largest high schools ended a week of graduation ceremonies by awarding diplomas to some 1,500 students.

Foothill and Amador High Schools in Pleasanton and both Granada and Livermore Highs at the other end of the valley held outdoor commencements under warm and sunny skies. For Foothill, it was a "first" and a tradition-setting event.

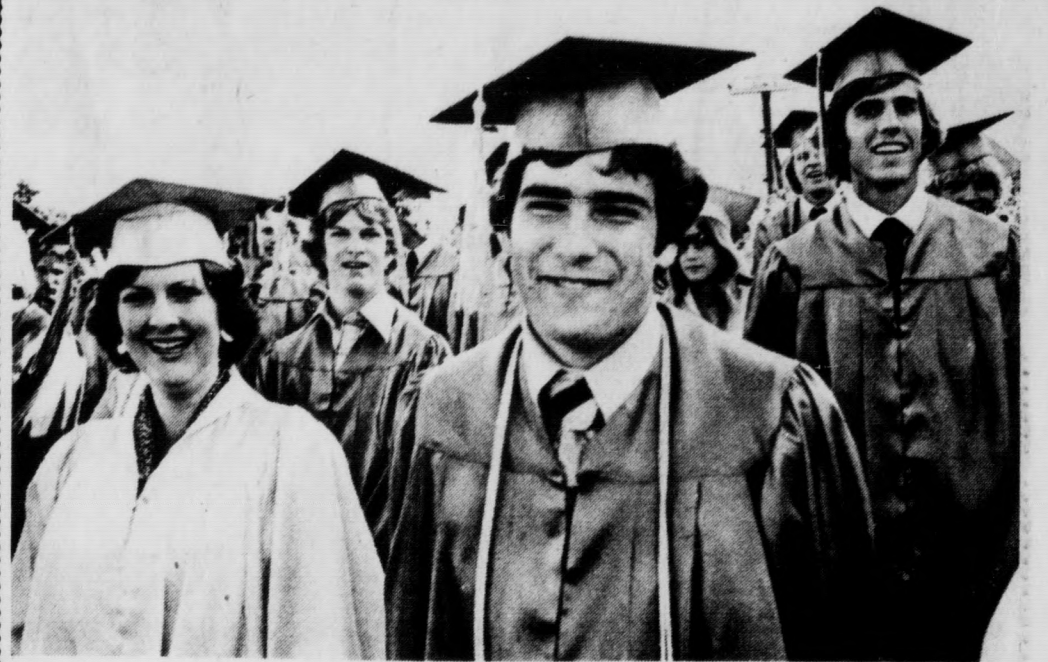

The graduates could be among the last to be getting their diplomas without having to pass a minimum competency test now being worked on by school officials. The test would hold back anyone who could not read, write and do math according to a set standard, because those students would be deemed not suited to coping with the ordinary demands of life — balancing a checkbook, reading ads, writing letters.

For now, graduates continued to be judged by their individual teachers, who admittedly may have been soft on them when it came right down to denying them that coveted hour on the athletic field in gown and mortarboard.

Last week, California High kicked off the round of graduations when their first four-year graduation was held Friday evening.

On Monday and Wednesday, two continuation schools (for students who were not adjusting to a larger high school) held their small-scale ceremonies. Students from Valley High, Dublin, received their diplomas Monday at the Pleasanton Hotel while Del Valle High graduates in Livermore held commencement in the Livermore High student union.

Dublin High commencement exercises were held Thursday evening. The four Friday graduation schedules were: Amador, 6:30 p.m. at the Fairgrounds; Granada, 5 p.m. on the athletic field; Foothill, 5 p.m. on campus and Livermore High, 7 p.m. on the football field.

Women lead East Avenue

LIVERMORE — A female triumvirate promises to lead East Avenue Intermediate School through "an exciting and activity-filled fall semester," according to student activities director Sheila Cooper. Recently elected to lead the student body were: Kati Nelson, president, Jenny Fraser, vice president and Patti Wilson, secretary.

Kati plays soccer, is a trombonist for the Blue Note Jazz Band and is active in Job's Daughters. She's an A student, has earned the President's Physical Fitness Award and has been on the school's volleyball and track teams. She is also active in French and pep clubs.

Jenny Fraser, an avid tennis player and a member of the Del Valle Swim Team, is also an honor roll student and has been active in French club this year. The newly elected student body secretary, Patti Wilson, has interests that range from gymnastics and soccer to 4-H Club. She served as vice president of the French Club this year, has been an active Pep Club member and has earned places on the school volleyball team and the honor roll.

Sunol trustees meet on outside pupil expenses

SUNOL — The Sunol Glen School District will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Sunol School.

The purpose of the hearing is to take action on the estimated cost and tax rate equivalent to local taxpayers for attendance of pupils from outside the district. The hearing is required by California Education Code law.

Agrarian roots

Summer classes open despite big enrollment

LIVERMORE — There's still room in some of the Livermore Valley Unified School District's summer classes, although some 5,700 children will be attending.

Many of the highly popular courses have been filled but students enrolling late will find courses that will keep them coming back for more throughout the summer, promises summer school principal Monty Reitz.

Dieting — it's all in your head

Most of us have suffered through one diet after another, not only from the mental anguish that comes from giving in and pigging out, but also from nagging hunger pains.

Now you can abolish half the anguish by EATING again! According to psychotherapist Geri Meyers, the key to a slim, healthy body lies "in visualizing your ideal self." Put that together with improving the quality of your food, and "you'll be healthier and more vital" before you know it," she declares.

The strawberry blonde 49-year-old, whose eyes sparkle with an infectious joie de vivre, will be leading a "Think Slim, Be Slim" workshop at Anthropros (1814 Catalina Ct., Livermore) Thursday, June 23 from 1 to 3 p.m. and 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The eight week course is priced at $35.

A marriage, family and child counselor, Geri will initiate the curious in a unique method of losing weight — by re-programming the mind.

"First of all, we eliminate the word 'diet' right off the bat," stresses Geri. Basing the course on Elyse Birkinshaw's book "Think Slim, Be Slim," the Oakland resident will teach workshop-goers how to re-program their subconscious minds as if they were erasing a tape.

The first step towards losing inches is learning the "words of power," says Geri. "You've got to say 'I like myself unconditionally every day for 21 days."

Why 21 days? "Because it takes that long for the brain to get used to the positive programming," explains Geri. The continual daily affirmation is accompanied by taking other positive steps, such as setting a weight goal and learning to relax.

"Relaxation is the only way to reach the subconscious mind," Geri believes, "and you must reach it in order to change it." By working in a supportive atmosphere and learning how to relax, she says, "You can get to the root of the problem — the only way to rid yourself of that problem is to get to the cause of the negative programming."

One must be mercilessly honest in order to find the cause of overeating, says Geri, which is "the direct result of your thinking, triggered by an underlying emotional problem."

And when the going gets rough, Geri encourages using the "buddy" system, so "you can call your buddy when you feel you might break down and eat junk food."

To register for the workshop call Geri Meyers at the Anthropros answering service, 443-1818.

Family outings

Summer fun ... for everyone

There won't be much trouble finding things to do with the whole family this week — especially if they like romping around in the outdoors, a bit of history and a fascinating look at (yes, you heard it right) soft drinks.

Horseshoeing, wood-chopping, sheep shearing and square dancing are all going to be part of "Bunker Hill Day," a June 19, Father's Day extravaganza at Sunol Regional Wilderness from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The celebration, which commemorates a traditional pioneer holiday, has been handled by Sunol staff and community members. Everything starts at 10:30 a.m. with a foot race to the top of Flag Hill, to honor the naming of the hill 73 years ago on the Fourth of July. The winner will be greeted atop the 1360-foot slope with a prize.

Other morning activities include a demonstration of how to mix straw and native clay and water to make adobe bricks, and a "History Walk" with park naturalist Joanne Dean.

An Old Time Medicine Show will take place at noon, where Warren Friedrich will hawk his wares — he's a bottle collector.

Later in the afternoon, there's a slide show, melodramatic puppet show (you get to boo and hiss the villains) and — something no self-respecting dieter would want to miss — a pie eating contest.

Face painting, dyeing, quilting, harness-making, and a turn-of-the-century fashion show will all be part of the afternoon festivities. The day winds up with square dancing, egg-tossing, sack races and tug-of-war across Alameda Creek.

The family should love this one, so it's a good idea

Kids will be plunkin' themselves down in front of the melodrama puppet theatre at Sunol Regional Park today during festivities for the traditional Bunker Hill Day.

gional Park today during festivities for the traditional Bunker Hill Day.

to bring a picnic lunch and join in.

The whole day is free and the public is invited to wear western garb to get in the mood.

And if you happen to go to Sunol on any other Sunday, be sure to take the nature walk with the rangers there from 1:30 to 4 p.m. A different subject — from the "sex life" of plants, to the environment of a stream — is covered every week on the hike.

Mission San Jose is another place that's not too far, yet has an atmosphere that's loaded with history. Located at 43300 Mission Blvd., Fremont, the early California site, which was built and used by the old padres, now holds a museum. Indian artifacts and religious items can be viewed in the nine rooms, and there's an adjoining olive grove and old cemetery that might be worth a visit. Mission San Jose is open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, and there's no admission (but donations are accepted).

Now, if you happen to be free on a weekday with a group of rowdy youngsters, make a date to see Shasta Beverages, 26901 Industrial Blvd., Hayward. They have a tour which any youngster would love: seeing how soda pop is put into its final stages of filling, packing and processing. The one-hour trip brings visitors through the laboratory, too.

There are some restrictions — kids must be at least of kindergarten age, and reservations must be made in advance. Tours are scheduled on weekdays, usually at 9 a.m. and between 1:30 and 3:30 p.m. Call the company at 783-3200 for any additional information.

U.S. history in a witty new poem

I didn't have time to read James Magorian's "The Red, White and Blue Bus" until I was sitting in my car prior to steaming off to work a picnic.

But I couldn't stop reading the 24-page poem which is a little allegory on America as a bus. After all, Greyhound had that Bicentennial bus, painted red, white and blue, and this is Magorian's improvement on the idea.

I laughed my head off. I read it for everyone at the picnic, and most of them howled. This poem could replace Allen Ginsberg's "Howl" because that's what people do when they hear it.

Basically the poem, published as a small book costing $1 from Samisdat Press, 1150 Spruce St., Berkeley, is one long chronology of the events that made America what it is. Only they all are related to the bus, as it rolls along the routes devised by the Great Dispatcher.

For example, Edgar Allen Poe screams that the raven should be the symbol of the bus company, with its picture on all flags and bus tokens. Jefferson Davis secedes from the bus and Harriet Beecher Stowe hands him a copy of "Uncle Tom's Suburban Home." A sweating Chinese coolie drives a golden spike into the side of the bus. Charles Crocker offers to take over the bus company. The bus rumbles past Walden Pond without stopping.

And the parodies of famous sayings and inscriptions are hilarious. "I know not what route others may take, but as for me, give me political power or give me a transfer ticket," says Patrick Henry. And there's the parody of that inscription on the Statue of Liberty, renamed the Statue of Avarice from the poet's viewpoint. "Give me your passengers foolishly yearning to be free, the wretched busloads of your teeming shore; send these, the victims, to me. I lift my billfold beside the bank door."

In all, it's a funny, irreverent romp through American history, just the perfect summertime reading, especially for young scholars who had to put up with nine months of the straight stuff. The poet, James Magorian, lives in Lincoln, Nebraska, and in the best tradition of America's starving artists, he had to sell his typewriter recently so he could buy a power saw to get a job chopping wood so he could keep eating. His book is one more example of why the small press is the only hope for a fresh generation of witty, iconoclastic and just plain good poets.

Now she's really flying high

What does $1200 worth of flying lessons do for you? Besides a pilot's license, you get a big dose of self-confidence, according to 22-year-old Terry Krisman. The Pleasanton housewife endured a lot of flying talk from her husband, an ex-pilot who is now self-employed, before finally "giving in" and taking an orientation ride.

"I knew I'd like it but I didn't know I'd love it!" Terry laughs. Now she can't get enough flying time to suit her, although she is still recovering "from the tingle" of flying solo. "I still can't believe I'm really doing this all by myself," she says.

Only a four month veteran of cockpits and flying jargon, Terry credits her instructor Ralph Rosel with giving her the self-confidence it takes to put her technical knowledge to practical use. "It's really just common sense," she reveals.

Rosel, an employee of Livermore's Landek Aviation, wasn't willing "to settle for less just because I'm a girl," she points out. Before flying solo or taking the required written exam, Terry had to learn how the plane operates, understand weather patterns, absorb emergency procedures and flight instructions.

"My long range goal is to become a certified flight instructor," Terry confesses. "We'll have to see if I've got what it takes."

If enthusiasm is the deciding factor, then Terry hasn't got a thing to worry about.

New YMCA program

Twin Valley YMCA is introducing a new program called Y-Pals for youth, aged 7 to 12, who have only one parent in the home. There will be special camping trips, outings and tours, where boys and girls are matched with Y leaders. A special YMCA camp begins this week for kids with single parents. For more information call Malik Shabazz at the YMCA officer (462-2211).

Presbyterians view new addition plans

PLEASANTON — Worshippers at Community Presbyterian Church will see drawings and a three dimensional model of their new sanctuary today.

The new church and three accompanying educational classrooms on the church's Mirador Drive site will cost an estimated $500,000 or less and be done in redwood siding, blending with the style of the neighborhood and the church's existing buildings.

Lew Helgeson of the church's building committee, told The Times that the cost estimate assumes that many people in the congregation will donate their labor for peripheral work like pouring sidewalks, installing fences, and planting landscaping.

Helgeson anticipates no problem in paying for the new buildings, if those who have made three year pledges meet their goals and then agree to extend their commitments another three years.

The century old picturesque sanctuary on Neal Street which touched off a debate around the community when a segment of the congregation wanted to move it to the Mirador Drive site will be refurbished, said Helgeson.

After it is brought up to building safety and fire codes, the old sanctuary will be leased out, probably to a new church which is looking for a place to meet.

"We want to keep that building," said Helgeson. "It has been important to the city of Pleasanton and we'd like to keep it used."

The people who built it 100 years ago had the worship of God paramount in their minds. We'd like to act as a seed and get another church going in it. We don't claim to have a monopoly on the worship of God.

The new sanctuary will feature a movable pulpit and comfortable chairs which can be stacked. Helgeson explained that the idea is to use the sanctuary for more than just a couple of hours every Sunday.

Helgeson praised architect Morgan Howell for donating valuable time in doing the design and drawings. He also had a big "thank you" for the folks who conducted the recent community tour of old town's Victorian houses. Some $3,700 was raised on the tour with all proceeds going to the building fund.

"Anyone who wants to do anything else that's tax deductible to help us, should feel free," said Helgeson.

Asked about the congregation's mood since the dispute over whether to build a new sanctuary or move the old one to Mirador Drive, Helgeson said that the church is nearly "100 per cent united."

"Of course," he added, "you never get 100 per cent agreement in any church and you shouldn't. If a church were 100 per cent agreeable, it would be made up of sheep. You need some goats in there, too."

Livermore records bit summer signup

LIVERMORE — Attendance at Tuesday's registration night for summer activities sponsored by Livermore Area Recreation and Park District broke all previous records.

LARPD officials said 1,200 Livermore residents signed up during the two hour period at the Recreation Center. They have been processing additional applications at the LARPD offices, 71 Trevarno Road.

The new program begins June 27. Anyone wishing to register for a class should contact the office about their choices, since many can still be accommodated in the various planned activities.

Openings are available at all five summer camps and in all tennis sessions except Session One. Consult the LARPD brochure for details of class times and prices or call 447-7300 for up-to-date class standings.

Members of the building committee at Community Presbyterian Church have unveiled this third dimensional model of the additions to their Mirador Drive site. The sanctuary and three classrooms will total nearly 10,000 square feet and cost $500,000. The sanctuary is expected to seat 450, or twice that of the 100 year old sanctuary on Neal Street. (Times Photo by Mike Macor)

Lacking data, pro-cityhood group postpones public meet

DUBLIN — A public meeting scheduled for June 20 at Shannon Center to hear committee reports on Dublin's proposed incorporation has been postponed until September 1977.

Incorporation chairman Dave Burton said various committees needed more time to gather facts.

Proponents of the incorporation had hoped to bring the matter to a vote Oct. 1. Burton said it looked like November 1978 was the earliest the measure could be put to a vote.

Stan Swihart, chairman of the contracts committee, reported his group has a number of unanswered questions concerning services. He said exact budget figures have not been made available.

The political committee indicated they had reached a point where legal advice was required. They said they hope to find a local attorney willing to work with the incorporation group.

Any interested attorney should contact Kathy Waterson, 828-8197, Committee Chairman.

Joe Madigan, states that since making its preliminary study, his budget committee is waiting for the contracts committee to come up with some hard budget figures and funding requirements.

Screeching tires, parties cited

Mt. Diablo traffic concerns citizens

By GAY LEE EDGAR
Times Staff Writer

DIABLO — A mile-long stretch of tortuous curves on Mt. Diablo Scenic Boulevard has become an area of terror for residents who are increasingly concerned about fast drivers and drinking parties in their area.

"We can hear the tires screeching on turns for miles before they pass our place. Later when we hear sirens, we wonder if it was that one," said one resident.

"Mt. Diablo is no longer a place to take families because of these characters who are drinking, taking dope and then racing up the road," said Charlene Gonzales.

"We notice it more after school and on weekends, and there are several spots where young people squeeze their cars into small areas off the road and have parties," said Mrs. William Dakin, who is concerned for the safety of the many young children living on the curvy road.

"We can see them from our place, and there are groups in each car, and sometimes there are quite a few cars in one spot, and they always race up and down the road," she said.

"One of the neighbors is constantly calling the police to ask them to do something about the traffic and the drinking," said Gonzales, a member of the church group that sponsored a picnic on the mountain where a 6-year-old boy was injured last week. "He's all right now, but he was in a coma for for awhile. It was the last straw for us."

"It's much worse on weekends, but we think it must be high school and college kids because it begins after school hours," said another Mt. Diablo Scenic Boulevard resident.

A representative from a homeowner association in the area said problems were not created only by local youths — motorcycles from all over the area come to the mountain on weekends.

Sheriff's officers said they had not received calls about problems along the stretch, and pointed out that four rangers supervise the park roads on weekends. Rangers said they hadn't noticed anything really bad.

At a recent board of supervisor's meeting, supervisor Eric Hasseltine said he had received numerous calls from residents complaining about traffic problems and criticized poor enforcement of speeding laws.

A reporting team from The Times drove the one-mile stretch after receiving several calls from residents and saw several cars on a weekday, filled with youths, driving at high speeds around the curves on Mt. Diablo Scenic Boulevard. Others cars were stopped in areas posted with "no parking" signs, and youthful drivers and passengers were drinking beverages.

Litter, mostly empty beer cans, was strewn in areas just off the road, and after school many young children were walking along the sides of the road.

County supervisors agreed to set up meetings between the Sheriff's Office, the California Highway Patrol, the District Attorney's Office and local legislators to deal with problems of monitoring activities on Mt. Diablo.

Pipeline issue stirs new talk

PLEASANTON — Chamber of Commerce President Bill Hirst missed the point in his declaration at a Chamber meeting Tuesday that the pipeline referendum "could endanger local commercial and industrial" growth, said Wally Mayer, Jr., yesterday.

Mayer, co-chairperson of the CARD Committee, which is carrying the petition to get the pipeline on the ballot again, said that the pipeline itself is the threat to expansion of local industry and commerce.

"A no-growth like Don Miller in Livermore favors the pipeline because it puts a ceiling on how much growth you can have," said Mayer. Other alternatives, such as water recycling which CARD has discussed, have the potential for unlimited growth and that would favor industry and commerce, said Mayer.

Mayer also felt that Hirst and others who have criticized CARD for carrying petitions have distorted what the group is doing. CARD does not necessarily oppose the pipeline; it simply is asking that the electorate be allowed to vote directly on it, as it did last November, said Mayer.

Mayer personally leans toward the pipeline, but both for the sake of his organization's view and the principle of letting the whole Valley electorate vote on it again, he thinks there should be another election.

"There are a lot of questions about the pipeline," said Mayer. "What if water recycling is possible in the near future? Why waste money on a pipeline if it's possible? Or suppose we build the pipeline and the regional water quality board decides a few years later that the pipeline doesn't meet some new standards they set? It means we will have wasted all that money on a pipeline."

"I would like the water board to put in a 'hold harmless' clause so that if they do set new standards, our pipeline would not become obsolete," said Mayer.

Dublin: there but signs don't show it

DUBLIN — A lot of roads lead to Dublin but due to unlighted and confusing directional signs many motorists have trouble pinpointing the exact access ramps that lead into town.

One such driver was a lady trying to get to Dublin from Los Altos, at night. An unlighted Dublin sign on eastbound Interstate 580 kept her going in circles for an hour.

She later reported to the Dublin Chamber of Commerce that she once ended up in Hayward before she could make a turnaround.

Similar complaints keep reaching Dublin's officials.

Some of the gripes are aimed at "less than clear" signs at other access points on both Interstate 580 and Interstate 680.

However, the I-580 signs are the worst, according to Paul Ryan. He is General Manager of the Valley Community Services District (VCS).

Ryan said the I-580 signs were put up "temporarily" until construction along the stretch of road near Dublin was completed in the fall.

He said county road department officials had assured him the permanent signs would be less deficient.

One sign that is proving especially bothersome is on westbound I-580. The motorist reads one sign that states, "Oakland-Dublin Straight Ahead." A bit further along, pavement markings lead him or her along a ramp that states "San Ramon Road-Foothill Boulevard."

"There is no indication that this is the only turnoff for the traveler destined for Dublin," Ryan wrote in a letter to C.R. Nordfelt. Nordfelt is Senior Engineer of traffic in the county Department of Transportation.

Ryan maintains in his

Big coffee crop, price drop seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — World coffee production is expected to increase sharply this season but still will be below the levels of two or three years ago before frost damaged the large Brazilian crop, the Agriculture Department said late last week.

Officials did not estimate the impact of the larger crop on consumer coffee prices. But wholesale prices have recently eased back from their rapid upward spiral of the past year.

The department's Foreign Agricultural Service, in its first estimate of 1977-78 world coffee production, said output is expected to be 70.4 million bags, up 14 per cent from 61.5 million in 1976-77.

Even so, the crop will be well below production in the two previous years including 81.1 million bags in 1974-75 and 73.6 million in 1975-76. A bag of green, unroasted coffee is about 132.2 pounds.

letter that such deficiencies should be taken care of as soon as possible.

He reported the permanent directional sign would read "Dublin-Next Right."

"Although this situation has prevailed for years, I am requesting that temporary signs reading 'Dublin-Next Right' be installed to correct this situation until the permanent signs are installed," Ryan wrote.

Ryan said his office was getting more and more complaints about this problem. He declared he didn't think it would take much to remedy the situation.

Fair Maid of Contra Costa County, Joanna Foster, right, gives beauty contest tips to this year's first contestant in the annual pageant, Rosalie Lucca of Pittsburg. Applications for the 1977 contest are available at local chambers of commerce and at the fairgrounds, 10th and L streets, Antioch. A new Fair Maid will be selected opening day of the five-day county fair, August 3-7.

CCC Maid recalls reign

ANTIOCH — Fair Maid of Contra Costa County, Joanna Foster, said she will never forget the past year.

In less than two months she will give up her crown but the memories will remain, she stated.

She has received cash and prize, hob-nobbed with celebrities, flew to Las Vegas and competed in three more beauty pageants during the short ten months she has held the county beauty title.

The most memorable moments of her year-long reign occurred when she participated in the Miss California-Universe pageant in Southern California.

The show took days of preparation including learning a dance routine for the competition. The event was broadcast live to homes in Southern California.

As a semi-finalist in that competition, Joanna received and expense-paid trip to Las Vegas in addition to several other prizes.

Earlier this month, Joanna was semi-finalist in the Miss Contra Costa-Universe competition. There were 22 entries.

Last August, she represented Contra Costa in the annual Maid of California contest at Cal Expo in Sacramento.

Joanna doesn't take beauty contests lightly although she admits she enters them for the "fun."

She has spent dozens of hours in exercise classes preparing for the contests. She has taken lessons in modeling and makeup application. Selecting proper clothes for pageants also requires hours of concentration.

Joanna doesn't want to be just a sex object. She turned down an offer by a men's magazine to pose for a spread.

"I wouldn't have been able to compete in any more contests if I had taken the offer," Joanna explained.

And without any more contests, Joanna said she would be missing the thrill of a lifetime. She is already planning to compete in the Miss Baja California contest in Mexico sometime in October.

Some celebrities Joanna remembers meeting during the past year have included Lucille Ball, Jack Klugman, Ava Gabor and the Beach Boys.

She admitted she "would do it all over again" if given the opportunity to be Fair Maid again.

Her advice to future beauty contestants is to enter with a "winning attitude — that's very important."

"You also have to have patience. Maybe you won't win the first time. But you have to keep trying. Each time it gets a lot easier."

New Livermore Maid

Tanya Snel, 1977 Maid of Livermore, will be participating in the Maid of Alameda County Pageant on June 26, 8 p.m. The pageant will be held in the fairgrounds' amphitheatre. The public is invited. Livermore Community Hour at the fair will be 2 to 3 p.m. on Friday, July 1, in the Court of Four Seasons. Carol Jean Famariss is in charge (phone 447-3535). Tickets for Livermore Day at the fair may be obtained from the chamber office at $3.25 each along with further information.

It will be ready set and go-go-go when Jenni and Don Corder begin teaching their summer disco-dance class June 21 at Shannon Community Center. (Times Photo by Sue Vogelsanger)

Bridge unit is forming

Tennis, anyone? Well then, what about bridge?

Single adults who enjoy either game — or who might like to try their hand — are invited to form a new singles group in the Valley, for the purpose of always having a partner — or a fourth.

"We spend a lot of time on the phone trying to get bridge games or tennis games going," explains teacher Abe Feinberg, who is organizing the group.

"Finally I thought, why not just make up a roster?"

"People could be of any ability level. We could even have a tournament in order to rank people by ability."

He doesn't plan to charge a fee for the service and expects to leave it up to the group to decide whether to have meetings.

Feinberg and a friend who is helping to coordinate the new group may be contacted at 447-9344 or 846-9569.

Speak up

The "Great Sewer Pipeline Debate" turn a strange turn this week. Somebody suggested "all those who back the local government's decision should make themselves heard."

Strange indeed, for it is the protesters and the petition-circulators who traditionally lead the action, grab the newspaper space. Only when we get around to a community-wide ballot do we ever find out if the early protest represented more than a disgruntled few.

Frankly, we don't know if the pipeline protest and its accompanying recall movement represent just the sentiment of those dedicated leaders, or reflect a much wider view. But if we are to judge by the letters, by the turbulent council meetings and the petitions, then all of those elected to serve us are crooks, or fools, or both.

Do you agree? Do you believe the city council or the board of directors has now been captured by some "special interest group" ... convinced to spend millions of dollars for "a pipeline no one wants, and that isn't really needed"?

Those are harsh charges. The people who make them, who circulate the petitions and write the letters, believe every last allegation. If you share their feeling, then by all means sign the petitions, support the recall.

But if you believe that you are being fairly represented, by people who are still trying to serve the total community, then you have an obligation to speak up. Right now you are supporting the protesters by your silence; and that is not right, if it is not fair, and it is certainly isn't democratic.

New school year

One superintendent in our midst looked back on "a year filled with difficulties and stressful times." Looking ahead, he wished for all educators that "we will leave behind the bitterness" and work instead toward "our common goal of providing a sound educational program ..."

To which all taxpaying - parents will add, "Amen!"

True, the "difficulties" involving local schools this past year were no more than an extension of the "new militancy" which has captured much of the state's school system. The one surprising element was that teacher militancy was matched with school board stubbornness.

Some even suggest "the school trustees and the taxpayers won most of the rounds in 1976-77." But that would be a short-sighted and dangerous conclusion.

For one thing, terms won or lost in the last several months applied for the most part to teacher contracts which expire this month. All parties must now go back to the bargaining tables for new contract talks, to govern the 1977-78 school year.

More important is the attitude of teachers, their willingness to start teaching, and stop negotiating. No one is served when classroom instructors spend a large part of their day worrying about pay steps, grievance procedures and job security.

The teachers must realize, however, that the public is not going to yield to each new condition put forward. School boards were clearly reflecting the community's majority when they declined to accept compulsory arbitration, and then countered with suggestions to end lifetime job guarantees for instructors.

When the next round of contract talks get underway, educators and administrators and trustees should remember they now have one thing in common: Public education is being challenged as never before; those who believe in that principle must work together, if they would keep classrooms from falling apart.

No smoking, please

If there's one thing Livermore city council doesn't need right now, it's a Monday night confrontation with smokers.

Council side-stepped that conflict when they opted for "voluntary compliance" of a code suggesting there be no smoking in "public places of assembly."

It's a good try, and we hope the people respond to the challenge.

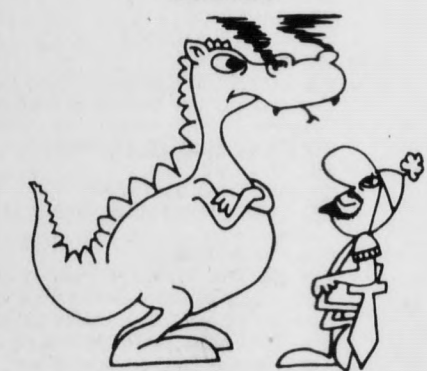

The City of Berkeley, and to a lesser extent Oakland also, met the smoking issue head-on. The jury is still out as to how those programs are working, and what city police are doing - if anything - to enforce such difficult bans on smokers.

The day of the non-smoker is definitely with us. Be it city ordinance, voluntary response or lynch mobs, those who don't smoke, and can't tolerate smoke, are determined to assert their rights.

And that's why Livermore's approach is interesting, and worthy of comment - both from the non-smokers, and those who feel lighting up is their constitutional right.

Besides, a battle over cigarettes would be such a refreshing change from that tiresome debate over sewerage.

Cancer Crusade helpers

Editor, The Times:

The American Cancer Society's crusade results are now in and we feel it was a very successful drive. Our goal was to have a 10% increase over last year's residential campaign and the valley exceeded that goal. The cooperation of many people was necessary for this success and it would be wonderful if we could mention the names of the outstanding workers, but there were so many.

We would like to especially thank Lynne Gross, Betty Cowdery and Mary Ann Chittick (Livermore city chairmen) and Dolly Dahlin (Dublin chairman) for outstanding endeavor and patience during this time, as well as many hard-working area chairmen, district captains and indispensable walkers.

We appreciate the hard work of the Pleasant Junior Women's Club who, under the able organizing of Marty Vassallo, raised a considerable amount for the Cancer Society. The following groups did a great deal to help distribute important materials in the valley: Rainbow Girls, Job's Daughters, DeMolay Boys, Snoopy Chapter of the Juniors, De-Yo-Ra-Sha group of the Campfire Girls, Troup 889 of the Girl Scouts, and the young people of the California Jr. Scholarship Federation at both Mendocino School and Wells Junior High.

We're especially grateful to Lucy Hobgood-Brown and Jean McKenna of the Times for their consistently good coverage and articles and to John Edmands for his editorial support.

An extra big "thank you" all for supporting this worthy cause which has touched so many of us personally.

Concord serenade

Tex Beneke and his band members matched the audience Sunday night at Concord Pavilion. Most were over forty.

Both groups were great. The band was sensational since the men were trained, disciplined musicians able to hold peoples' attention without using plugged-in electronic gimmicks.

"Isn't it good to hear real music again," was the phrase heard most 'round the crowd of 6000.

The audience proved their worth by listening and responding in a mannerly, appreciative way.

That doesn't mean the audience was mouse-quiet. From the second Beneke led the band into the "Moonlight Serenade" theme song reminiscent of Glenn Miller days, the crowd ooo-ed and ahh-ed all the way down Nostalgia Trail.

Emcee Mike Cleary from KNBR Radio 68 in San Francisco said that kind of music transcends time. He was right.

For the rest of the evening, the Concord Pavilion was a time-machine star-trekking everyone back to the summer of '42 and thereabouts.

Fervor built as Beneke's band played the litany of Miller hits.

"String of Pearls," "Pennsylvania 6-5000," "Tuxedo Junction," "St. Louis Blues March," "Little Brown Jug," "Ida, Sweet as Apple Cider," and others brought cheers from the audience.

Hands clapped, Feet tapped. Mouths lip-synced never forgotten lyrics.

Whispers of "that's our song" filtered thru the rows. Sometimes people sat quietly; mesmerized in melody.

Time and again Beneke's band punched the magic-moment button. It wasn't long before the crowd gave them a standing ovation.

The climax came with "In the Mood."

Suddenly, the aisles were jammed with people jitterbugging. I wondered how many would be lame the next day after their retreat to adolescence. It didn't matter.

This was a special night. Life was a prom - a hop - a ballroom again.

Forget double chins, slipped discs, graying hair and paunches. It was care-free youth and freedom time.

Beneke and his saxophone mellowed the mood from time to time. When he sang, his voice sounded better than ever.

The crowd marveled at the volume he could project without maximum mike assistance. Talent, technique and self-discipline came thru every clearly enunciated word.

Bob Eberly and Helen O'Connell had the same kind of vocal command.

The music switched to Jimmy Dorsey tunes about this time.

Eberly and O'Connell sang solos that brought down the house. Then they sang duets. "Amapola," "Tangerine," and "Green Eyes," were a few.

He started off the dynamic duos in his smooth down tempo style. She followed with her finger-snapping up tempo.

Considering the volume they produced, it was a wonder the glass ball attached to the stage ceiling didn't shatter.

Women whipped out binoculars and took a gander at O'Connell to see how "she was holding up."

Men borrowed the magnifiers to see that "she was looking terrific."

She would have sparkled even if she hadn't been decked out in a midnight-blue sequined blouse with chiffon sleeves and long, flowing chiffon skirt/pants the same color. From her blonde head to her silver-slipped toes she was a bundle of talent, energy and beauty.

Besides being talented, Beneke and Eberly displayed a fine sense of comedy. They cracked a lot of "age" jokes but got away with it since they included themselves predominantly in the over-the-hill humor.

Eberly said it was getting tougher and tougher to try and look young and flat-bellied while he waited in the wings to go on. He kidded O'Connell about her "aluminum shoes."

I overheard more than one parent say, "we wanted to bring the kids but they kept asking us 'who were Tex Beneke and Glenn Miller?'"

In some circles, it's hard to believe there are young people who don't know about Beneke and Miller. That big-band sound is something no one should have to miss.

Round the town

I have been thinking a great deal lately about religion, and taxes. Fortunately, the one solves the other.

Admittedly, I am one of those old-fashioned types who was brought up to "render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God ..." etc. Now I discover I have been getting gyped, robbed of many dollars by Uncle Tax.

"Religion As A Tax Shelter." That's the title of a new book making the rounds. It will be a best seller. The idea has already been sold to thousands among us who see a chance to put their savings where their faith is, so to speak.

There's this one town where every blessed adult is now an ordained minister. Cost 'em $10 apiece for the certificate. They will save one hundred times that every year, in taxes they no longer have to pay on their home (church), and in generous exemptions which Uncle Tax grants just to those who list their religion as a number one occupation.

Now, I'm not one for kneeling down all the time. (Truth is even the Sunday morning hour, which has lately grown to 70 minutes, hits me right in the small of the back. I'm looking for a pastor who advocates quiet contemplation, in the garden, with a glass of iced tea, or whatever.)

Point is, one doesn't have to run spend a lifetime on a needle-point kneeler to earn salvation, at least not from Uncle Tax. You get relief from a certificate. "The Reverend John ..." and so forth.

You escape most taxes. You can also escape the draft. "God did not intend for his minister to serve in the military..."

The United States Army has yet to figure out an answer to that one. Cassius Clay laid it on 'em, said he'd rather preach than fight. Supreme Court backed Cassius. Now he's Mohammed Ali, world's best fighter, and best preacher. Making a million on both counts. Even his jock strap is tax exempt ... dedicated to the Lord.

"Give up candy and put the pennies in the poor box," Mother would counsel us. There were was nobody in town poorer than us. But that wasn't the point. "Giving only counts when it hurts." That was another of Mom's homilies. We were raised to hurt a lot.

Nobody suggested we charge off those donated pennies to our income tax. Might have been because we didn't have any income worth taxing.

Giving today's a complicated business. President Ford gets the first hole-in-one in presidential golf; donates sacred ball to charity; big corporation buys ball for $15,000; gives ball (mounted) back to President Ford; gives Uncle Tax a $15,000 shafting.

It is only when you are in the higher tax brackets that you come to realize just how blessed it is to give, while you also receive. But now all that is changing.

"Just send five dollars to the Church of The Enlightened Taxpayer and you will receive back this handsome Certificate of Ordination naming you a bona fide minister of ..."

There are numerous side benefits. Get to preach to yourself (and the spouse!) each Sunday morning. Saturday night you can set up a little bingo game in the living room. Invite the neighbors. 25 cents a card, five for a dollar. "Bless you, neighbor, it's all for the church..."

No man is an island. But every man might be a church. Woman too, the way things are going. Nobody has figured out what happens when He gets ordained into one ministry, and She swings over to the enemy camp. But that's another problem.

Right now it's Uncle Tax who's getting deitic ulcers. Two hundred and twenty million Ida Amin's all claiming they are in direct communication with the Lord. All exempt from earthly tithes and taxes. "Ten - four God, this is Big John, over and out."

But one must go all the way, in order to earn this heavenly exemption. All income must be diverted to The Church. No knocking down dimes for personal luxuries. Uncle Tax is on the alert.

And so is the Supreme Court of the United States. Other day a standard, once - a - week follower of the faith tried to compel Trans World Airlines, his employer, to give him every Saturday off ... the day Mr. Standard worships the Lord.

"Can't do it," the Supreme Justices ruled, "would be unfair to other employees, and to Trans World."

If Mr. Standard had been smart, he would have got himself certified as a Minister of the Trans World Church. Free to preach seven days of the week. Advise the boss: "Don't knock anything off my check for taxes ... they're against my religion."

But if the idea really catches on, who's going to finance the next war?

Hookers

California cities are experiencing a seeming expansion of prostitution. From the complaints of businessmen and residents in larger communities of the state it would appear that the "hookers" are swarming like locusts. No doubt the drift of young women into the "easy life" accelerates during periods of inflation and unemployment. But the tendency of many, as always, is to blame it on the degeneration of today's morality.

Yet, as any student of history knows, harlotry has existed as far back as written records of civilization and before. Not for nothing is prostitution known as the "oldest profession." In ancient Sumeria, Egypt and Babylon it flourished and the courtesans even achieved a measure of honorable status.

Today's problems with the prostitutes are not because it has suddenly become widespread. If the facts were known there are probably no more percentage-wise, if as many, plying that trade than at any other period in modern day America or otherwise.

The real difference is that the laws, and the methods of enforcement of those laws made necessary by court decisions, have driven the joy girls into the bars and into the streets where their promiscuity is blatantly conspicuous.

As a result the businessmen see their establishments shunned by patrons who don't want involvement with such traffic and the householders witness their streets being turned into outdoor brothels as the shady ladies solicit customers for their wares. This brings demands for more active enforcement and the heat is applied to the police and the courts.

But the cold fact is that arrests, fines and even jail sentences won't stamp out prostitution today any more than it has over thousands of years of history.

Still, since the businessmen are to be protected from the conduct of others which becomes unwarranted interference with their trade and respectable householders have every right to be shielded from activities which blight their neighborhood, a solution must be found.

Not surprisingly, in view of its long history, other generations did have a workable answer. This was the restriction of prostitution to "red light" districts. There is "parlor houses" and stockades" the girls entertained out of public view but under the watchful eyes of "madams" who brooked no disorder. Pimps and drugs were not tolerated. Patrons could frequent the establishments without fear of being robbed or contracting social diseases.

The simple answer then is the legalization of "houses of ill repute." The contention that morality is involved in such a decision is sheer hypocrisy. Sexual intercourse is not crime in this state excepting when there is an instant payment of cash. If it is performed for other favors such as mink coats, jewels, furnished apartments, trips to Acapulco, or solely for pleasure, no crime has been committed.

If surveys taken by Assemblyman Leroy Green who authored legislation a couple of years ago to carry out his findings, are accurate the majority of the public favors decriminalization of prostitution.

Certainly, with the high rate of violent crime including murder, robbery and rape, the time of the police and the courts can be far better occupied providing protection for the public than in waging an unending battle with the natural instincts of men and women which have defied subduing down through the ages.

The public has a choice of altering the laws to gain some measure of control over the practice or continuing to be plagued openly by the practitioners while the police and the courts divert their energies from more important duties.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: While I'm not fond of any police, I really hate women cops. Last week, I got so angry when I found a police woman ticketing my car that I developed a headache that I still have. She turned away when I tried to explain that I was parked because of an emergency. This made my blood boil. As a result, I went home and got into a terrible fight with my wife. She walked out and hasn't come back yet. I've always had a terrible temper but I get bottled up and frustrated with women because I know I can't hit them. How can I show my emotions so I don't end up with a headache? — W.O.

DEAR W.O.: First, I suggest that you try analyzing why you find women in authority so much more threatening than men in authority. Until you get at the source of this problem, you're going to continue to have difficulty in relations with women.

While I understand that it's a waste of time to try to carry on a prolonged discussion with a police officer, male or female, who is about to ticket your car, the same is not true with most other women you meet, including your wife. When you're angry, try to express this in words, not words that punish and attack, but words that explore the real reasons for your anger. You obviously have such a deep hostility toward women that you view them only as symbols, not as individuals.

If, and when, your wife comes back, I suggest you take her to dinner and try to treat her like an individual apart from her sex. If you can learn to relate to her, to understand and respect her point of view even when it differs from your own, you may begin to improve your relations with other women you encounter. Try to explore the similarities rather than the differences between men and women.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I've been married for only six months to a man 20 years my senior. I love him very much except for one not-so-small thing—he's insanely jealous.

He's absolutely certain that I'm going to have an affair with any man near my own age. He doesn't want anyone to talk to me or to look at me except from a distance. He doesn't talk to me like an adult or an equal, and treats me like a child. I've joined a women's consciousness-raising group and now his treatment really bothers me. — K.B.

DEAR K.B.: I hope you've been as honest with your husband about your feelings as you've been in this letter. It sounds to me as if you're in the process of changing rather radically from the person you were when you fell in love with and married your husband.

What I'm suggesting is that this man treated you like a prize possession before you were married and that this apparently appealed to you. I would also imagine you must have had some clues about his jealousy at that time, too. I'm not blaming you, but I think it's important for you to search for the reasons you were initially drawn to this type of personality.

It's possible that since you're changing with your participation in the women's movement, your husband may also change for the better. Certainly, he's bound to have some reaction. However, he may redirect his jealousy and begin to resent the time you spend with these women.

Jealous people are insecure and desperately afraid of losing what they love. A person with a younger mate is apt to feel more threatened than persons who marry in their own age bracket. They may be attracted to much younger people because they are searching for eternal youth for themselves.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHAT IS PAPHYRUS?"
A. PAPHYRUS IS A TALL, REEDLIKE PLANT THAT ANCIENT EGYPTIANS MADE A PAPERLIKE WRITING MATERIAL WITH BY CUTTING THE LONG STEMS INTO STRIPS AND ROLLING THEM INTO SHEETS.

Much of the writing done in ancient Egypt was done on a paperlike material made from a tall, reedlike plant called papyrus (pronounced pa PIE rush), that grows in the valley of the Upper Nile River.

To make their papyrus paper, the Egyptians removed the outer rind and sliced the inner pith of the papyrus stalk into thin strips. The strips were laid crosswise in a double layer on a flat stone and beaten with a wooden mallet until they matted together in a single sheet.

The sheet was pressed under a heavy weight and then dried in the sun.

Finally, the papermaker polished the sheet with a rounded stone and trimmed the edges.

People wrote on the papyrus paper with a brush dipped in black ink. The sheets of papyrus were pasted end-to-end into long rolls that were wrapped around rods. The reader rolled up the part he had read while he unrolled new pages.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had my gall bladder removed, but off and on I have terrible gas pains. These are relieved by drinking water which expels the gas. What is the cause of this, and is there any other way to expel gas? It is quite painful — almost like a heart attack. It can come at any time.

I was out to my garden in the country and had a jug of dirty rain water, caught off my garage roof, to water plants and just then these gas pains came, and I was forced to drink some of this water. I wonder if my gall bladder was removed or if it's still there.

DEAR READER — The gas pains may be totally unrelated to your gall bladder. You really didn't say whether you had gas pains before surgery or not. Gas pains are not a reliable sign of gall bladder disease at all. Often the gas pains are part of an irritable or spastic colon or they can be associated with a hiatal hernia. When an X ray is taken it may show gall stones.

The conclusion is made then that the stones and the symptoms are related. In reality this may not be the case. Then if the gall bladder is removed and the gas was associated with an irritable colon, obviously the operation does not remove the gas problem.

I am certain that your gall bladder is out. Your story sounds like a spasm in the intestinal tract that traps the gas. When the spasm is relieved the gas pain is relieved. There are many reasons for this problem, but I would suggest that you eliminate all milk products for a couple of weeks and see if that helps. Intolerance to milk is particularly apt to occur after surgery, and this may be a temporary situation.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-8, Gaseousness - Controlling Gaseousness. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Oswald: "Bridge players have lots of allergies. South's was that he was allergic to stopping one trick short of game. So he looked at his sixth spade and decided that he had to go to game after his partner invited it."

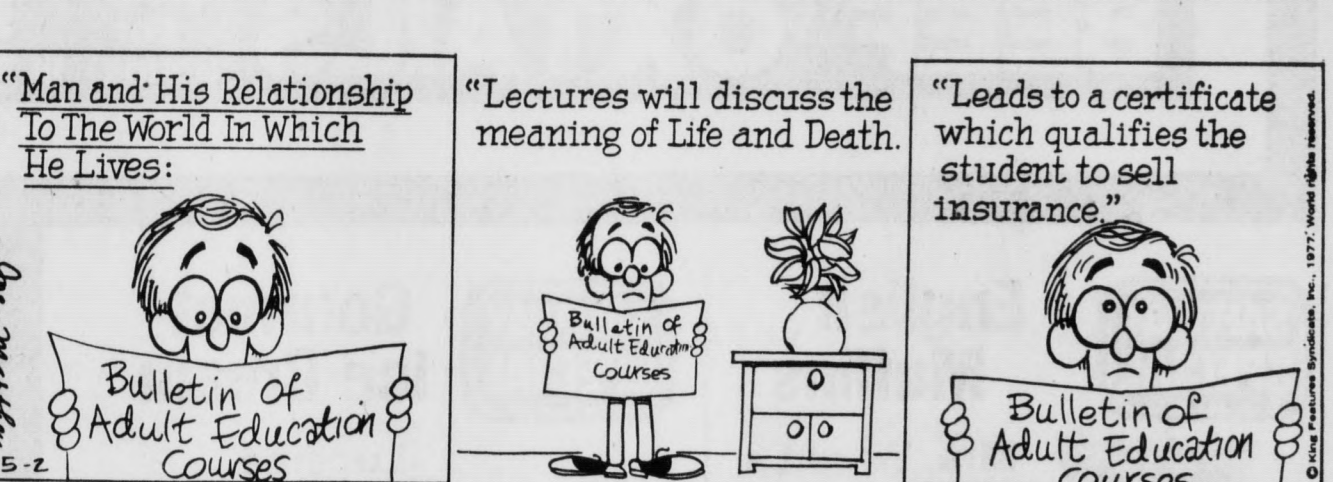

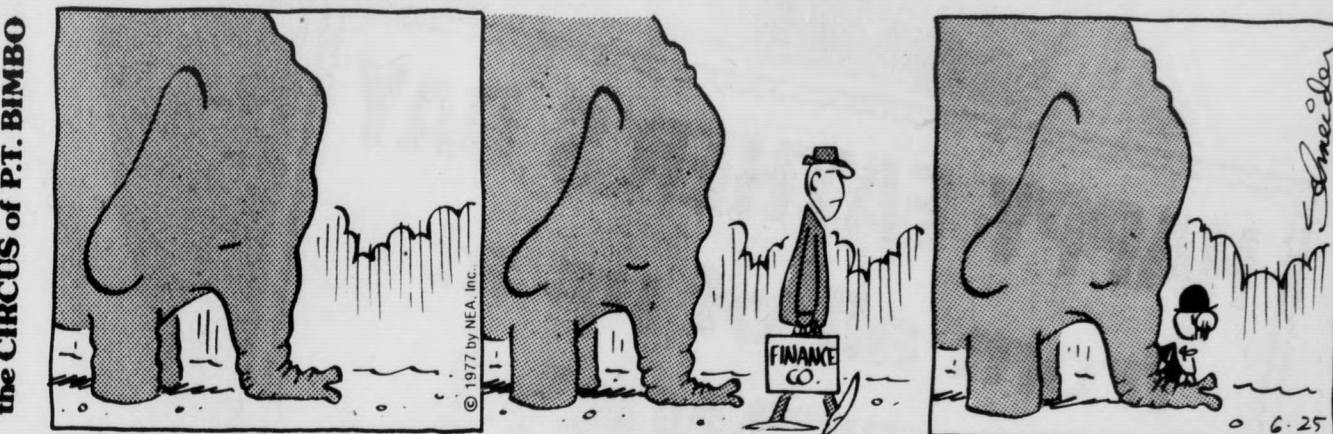

Jim: "Maybe that sixth trump was sufficient reason. In any event when South looked at dummy, he saw that there was a reasonable play for game."

Oswald: "His first concern was with the trump suit. He wanted to lose just one trump trick and there was a chance he could work it out. He led a trump to dummy's queen. It held. He led back a trump. East played the jack and South ducked. This play is called the compulsory finesse. He couldn't gain by covering. He did gain by ducking because West had to play the ace."

Jim: "After this nice result South was home. Hearts were continued. South ruffed the third heart, drew the last trump and went after diamonds. The suit failed to break, but South still had his contract."

A's blanked, 2-0; Mitchell recalled

CHICAGO — Ken Kravec, needing eighth-inning help from Lerrin LaGrow, hurled a four-hitter and struck out 11 Saturday to lead the Chicago White Sox to 2-0 victory over the Oakland A's.

Kravec, 2-2, had a two-hitter going into the eighth when Rod Scott and Manny Sanguillen hit one-out singles, Sanguillen taking second on the throw to third.

Kravec then made Mitchell Page his 11th strikeout victim before LaGrow came in to get Dick Allen to ground out and end the inning.

Kevin Bell's sacrifice fly and Jorge Orta's run-scoring single supplied the offense for the White Sox. Richie Zisk walked in the second inning, took third on Eric Soderholm's single and scored on Bell's fly to center.

The Sox picked up another run in the sixth when Ralph Garr singled, went all the way to third on Blue's errant pickoff throw and scored on Orta's single.

The shutout was the first of the season by the White Sox pitching staff. The Sox have yet to be blanked.

Kravec's 11 strikeouts were a personal high — he fanned 10 in a game against Boston last year — and tops for the Sox this year.

Kravec retired the first six batters before Willie Crawford made his debut for the A's by drawing a walk to open the third. Two outs later Scott singled but Kravec threw out Sanguillen to end the inning.

The play of the game was made by Chet Lemon in the fourth inning. With two outs, Gross drew a walk and Earl Williams hit a drive to deep center only to have Lemon make a one-handed catch while crashing into the wall.

After Allen singled in the seventh, Kravec fanned Gross, but hit Williams with a pitch. Crawford then flied out and Tony Armas fanned.

LaGrow retired all four batters he faced — two on strikeouts — to earn his 10th save.

Jim Essian singled in the eighth for the sixth and final hit off Blue and extended his hitting streak to 14 games.

Green keeps Open lead

TULSA, Okla. — Lanky Hubert Green, constantly talking, gesturing, smiling to a heat-wilted gallery, scrambled to a two-over-par 72 that, surprisingly, enabled him to retain a one-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the United States Open Golf Championship.

Green, now only 18 holes away from the major title that so far has eluded him, composed a 54-hole total of 208, two under par on the Southern Hills Country Club course, 6,873 yards of gently rolling hillsides that were scorched by 90-plus degree temperatures and oppressive humidity.

Big Andy Bean, the tour's most noted alligator-wrestler, was the only other man under par after three rounds of this 77th American national championship. Bean, who, like Green, spent his boyhood summers in weather similar to that which turned this event into an endurance contest, shot a 68 and was one under par at 209.

Green, who needs only a major title to confirm his status as one of the game's leading lights, grew up in Birmingham, Ala., and the 6-foot-4, 210-pound Bean learned to wrestle alligators in the swampland of southern Georgia.

They were followed by a group at 210 — even par — that included Tom Weiskopf, grimly determined South African Gary Player,

Valley Connie Mack team rifled

Times

SPORTS

Dave Weber, Editor

HAYWARD — They keep trying, but valley baseball teams have had the same kind of success against Hayward's E. Berckovich nine as Alfredo Evangelista did against Muhammad Ali.

Tri-Valley, the area's reorganized Connie Mack team was the latest victim, absorbing a pair of poundings, 17-1 and 10-3, yesterday afternoon at Chabot College in their first games ever.

Dan Pearson, who plays for Chabot during the spring, cracked two doubles and a three-run homer to lead the opening win. Pearson's barrage and lesser explosions by his teammates supported a five-hitter by Nick Niacaris, who struck out 14.

Tri-Valley's only run came in the seventh, when Danny Wilkes singled home Dave Dearborn, who had walked and stolen his way round to third.

The local team found itself behind at the beginning, and buried at the end, of the nightcap, but had a few moments of glory in between.

Berckovich took the lead, as they had in the first game, in the bottom of the first inning.

Brad Wellman, the son of former Chabot coach Gene Wellman, led off with a line drive single up the middle of the diamond and found second after a wild pitch by Tri-Valley left hander Mark Davis. Guy Goveia, who homered in the first game, then sliced a foul ball off first and Livermore alumnus Bob Tarte speared it and tumbled to the ground.

Wellman took off for third and scored when Tarte's throw bounded away from third baseman Dearborn.

But in the next half-inning, Tri-Valley bounced back to take a 3-1 lead that lasted till the fifth.

With one out, Davis fanned on a ball in the dirt, but made it to first when catcher Jeff Mueller had it skip through his legs for a passed ball. Perry then swatted a shallow liner to right for a single and an out later, Tarte hit a carbon copy of Jeff's one-bagger over the lunge of second baseman Gouveia and when the center-fielder threw the ball away, Davis scored.

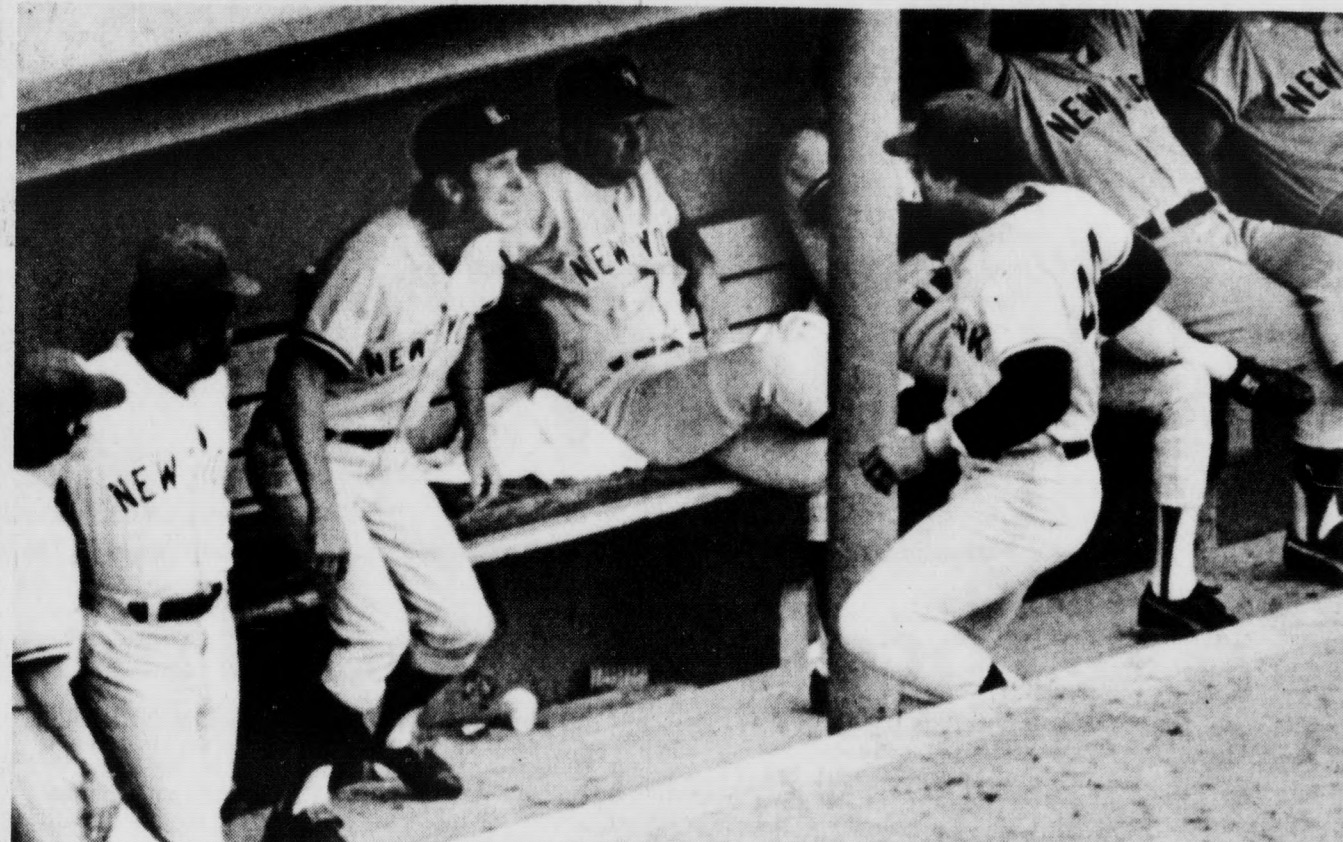

Mike Hoff then walked to load the bases and Wes Karch bounced a ground rule, two-run, double over the left field fence at a point 360 feet from home plate to give Tri-Valley a 3-1 lead.

But a five-run rally in the fifth, including a hard-hit two-run homer by Michael Young, put E. Berckovich ahead, 6-3, and the Hayward club put it out of reach in the sixth inning of the abbreviated second contest, with four more runs.

Davis got the loss for Tri-Valley while reliever Dennis Perez, who pitched 5½ innings after coming in for Dave Ferguson, the Alameda County all-star basketball player who dropped out of this weekend's try-outs to play for Berckovich.

New York Yankee manager Billy Martin yells expletives at Reggie Jackson after pulling the Yankee star out of the game during sixth inning of Boston Sox-Yankee clash Saturday. The two had a brief verbal confrontation in game which Yankees lost, 10-4.

Fair anticipates racing records

Record breaking crowds are anticipated at this year's horseracing in Pleasanton during the Alameda County Fair running from June 26 to July 10 at the Alameda County Fairgrounds.

Box seats are already sold out with reserved seats quickly being requested. Persons interested in obtaining reserved seats should contact the Alameda County Fairgrounds at 846-2881, giving the date, number of seats desired and name of party responsible for the reservation.

Fourteen additional "sellers" windows and five "cashiers" windows will be available for quick service and relieving congestion from within the grandstand between races. This improved service for racing fans comes about with the addition of the new Pari-Mutuel building as an annex to the Grandstand.

Daily post-time for the 12 days of racing will be 1:30 p.m. Some $695,000 in purse money will be offered to the winning horses. In addition, 10 special Stake Races will be presented, one of which is the twelfth running of the Alamedan for $25,000 for three-year-olds and up.

Twelve races daily will be presented during the meet with one Appaloosa, two Quarter Horses and nine thoroughbred races. Bettors can play their hunches on a $2 Exacta on the first race, the Daily Double on the fourth and fifth races and a $5 Exacta on the eighth and 12 races.

A "winner" for every fan planning to attend the races daily is the first time offered, "Racers Delight" discount admission ticket. A regular ticket price of $42 being offered for $30 includes 12 adult fair admission tickets, 12 racing general admission tickets good June 27 through July 9, 1977.

Giants outlast Pirates in 12 innings

SAN FRANCISCO — Although still six games under .500, the Giants look invincible when they play the Pittsburgh Pirates.

San Francisco has compiled losing records against weaklings Atlanta and New York, but put the Bucs on the field and Joe Altobelli's lads play as if they're the '27 Yankees reincarnated.

Gary Thomason slugged a two-run homer in the bottom of the 12th to give the Giants a 7-5 win Saturday at Candlestick Park — their fifth win without a loss against the "thunder and lightning" Pirates.

Thomason wasn't the only Giant to knock one out of the park in the extra innings.

Jack Clark hit a majestic shot over the left field screen that enabled the Giants to survive the 10th after Pittsburgh had taken a 5-4 lead.

It was Clark's fifth homer of the year, his second as a pinch hitter, his second in as many days against the Bucs, and it came off Rich Gossage, one of the premier right-handed relievers in baseball.

The blow added credence to the right-handed Clark's drive to play every day. He has been platooned most of

Besides, "If Clark plays, then (Terry) Whitfield can't."

Whitfield, who plays against right-handed pitching, is leading the Giants in hitting with a .314 average.

But both Clark and Thomason hit their homers off same-side pitchers.

"That knocks my theory on its ass," quipped Altobelli.

The Giants kept the pressure on Pittsburgh through the regulation nine innings.

After coming close in the first, the Giants took a 2-0 lead on Marc Hill's ground single into centerfield, scoring Willie McCovey and Tim Lincecum, who had singled and doubled, respectively.

The Pirates halved the lead in the third, when Frank Taveras blooped a double off shortstop Foli's glove in shallow left field, and scored on a safety squeeze bunt by Buc pitcher Bruce Kison.

Pittsburgh tied it in the sixth when leadoff man Rennie Stennett singled, stole second, moved to third on a ground out and scored on a sacrifice fly by Dave Parker.

But the Giants broke the tie in a hurry, as a single by Whitfield and walks to Darrell Evans and McCovey loaded the bases with one down in the sixth.

Foli scored Whitfield with a line drive sacrifice fly to deep left, and seldom-used utility man Vic Harris, having replaced the spiked Mike Andrews at second base, doubled down the rightfield line to give the Giants a 4-2 lead.

Giants' starter Ed Halicki was four outs from a win when Bill Robinson roped one over the left field screen with Jerry Hairston aboard to tie the game in the top of the eighth.

It remained 4-4 until the Pirates parlayed two cheap hits and a booming sacrifice fly by Willie Stargell into a 10th-inning run. Parker blooped a double to left and Al Oliver dragged a bunt past reliever Gary Lavelle to put runners at the corners before Stargell sent Darrel Thomas to the track in center to score Parker.

Randy Moffitt, the third Giant pitcher, got the win to up his mark to 2-4. Terry Forster, who entered the game as a pinch hitter in the top of the 12th before going to the mound took the loss. He is 1-1.

Altobelli was impressed with the work of the three Giants' pitchers.

"You can't fault Halicki, he did a whale of a job, but that guy (Robinson) hit a tough pitch" for the tying home run.

Altobelli didn't have a theory to explain his team's success against the Pirates, but said "They're pulling the pieces together themselves, and doing a fine job of it. I hope it continues."

The Giants and Pirates play a doubleheader today, starting at noon. The likely matchups are left-handed Bob Knepper (0-1) and Charlie Williams (2-0) for the Giants against Pittsburgh's Larry Demery (3-3) and lefty Jim Rooker (5-4).

NOTES: Rob Andrews lost his 13-game hitting streak the hard way — he came to bat only once before being sidelined when Kison spiked him on a fielder's choice at second. Andrews is expected to be back in the lineup today ...

Pepperdine's MBA program: exclusively for experienced business people

Experienced managers and technical people entering management, unlike graduating seniors, need an MBA program that builds on experience rather than ignores it, one that provides early professional payback on the time and money they invest. They also need a program that minimizes the time conflicts between education, job, and family. The Pepperdine MBA program has been designed with these needs in mind. Of course, you must be a college graduate to enter, but you must also have business experience, too, so that you can relate to the issues being examined, and we strongly prefer that you be employed. Management techniques have to be tried out, and your job is your testing ground.

Focus: the problems that surface with experience

The professional manager's most perplexing problems often are those which emerge only with increased responsibility, and many enter our MBA program sensing that their chief managerial problem is themselves. Thus, we start with you, with behavior, yours and others, and the first trimester is an intense personal experience which pays dividends immediately. The next three trimesters, you update your analytical and problem-solving skills, tackle organizational issues, and work on a project important to you or your organization.

Learn by doing and interacting
We place heavy emphasis on outside reading and work-related projects. That way, seminar time can be spent, not in lecture, but in interchange with your faculty, who have extensive managerial experience as well as high academic credentials, and with your classmates, who, like you, are managers.

If you start, be prepared to finish
MBA seminars meet throughout Northern California either one night a week or once every three weeks, Friday evening and all day Saturday — our way of helping you cope with the demands of work, family and education.

In exchange, we ask your attention, not forever, but for 16 intensive months during which we allow no half-load schedules, no dropping in and out.

Invest an hour, talk with University representatives

We can think of no better way for you to appreciate and evaluate the program. Representatives will be available as shown below to discuss Fall trimester, which begins September 6. Please call collect during normal business hours to confirm.

Kavanagh takes wild 19-6 win over Godfathers

Jim Kasnamiri hit for the cycle, stroking two singles, a triple, a double and home run to lead a wild 19-6 win for Kavanagh Liquors over the Godfathers in LARP Mens "B2" softball action Thursday evening.

Gerry Girard pounded three singles and a double to back the winning hitting attack, while Dave Owen and Art Miller each had three singles, Stan Peters doubled and singled and Larry Gonsalves doubled and singled. Bob Compton added a base hit.

For the losers, Tony Martin singled three times and doubled, while Steve Nichols homered, doubled and singled, Ron Whersderfer singled twice and homered, Darryl Irving, Bob Borges and Dicke Herbert each singled twice and Fred Soto homered while Dave Oxen doubled. Fred Alonya and Larry Werlinger added singles, while Manuel Martin doubled and singled.

The Matador Lounge nipped Smorga Bob's, 7-6, as Dave Green doubled and singled and Ed Escover singled twice. Paul Carozza tripled and Dennis Dickman doubled to back the attack, while Gary Harvey, Phil Kerrigan and Ken Hegarty all singled.

Al Kinkes tripled twice for the losers, while Chuck Canfield tripled and singled and Jim Fuchs singled twice, as did Dave Russell. Mike Vingo and Pat Fowler both singled.

Freitas Moving Company rolled over Sadler and Turner, 20-6. Dave Lynch led the slaughter with a home run and single, Jim Baswell singled three times, Bob Bancho doubled twice and singled, Jerry Tasselli singled doubled and triple, coming just short of a homer on a ball ruled an error by the right fielder that would have completed the cycle. Jim Murphy singled twice and doubled.

For the losers, Chuck Williams doubled and singled, Bob Rauch singled twice, Jim Sadler singled twice, Ted Nelson doubled, Jim Ward singled, Tim Jenkins singled and Bob Williams laced a base hit.

The Nazarene Church blasted the O-Zones, 12-4. Rick Nultemeier singled twice and tripled, Neil Lann singled twice and doubled, Vern Blakesley singled three times and Joe Montano and Steve Goodman singled twice.

Keith Teixeira had three hits for the losers, while Dan Duke added a pair of singles. Ken Stayton, Tony Teixeira and Andy Lewis all singled.

Fink rips cover off in LLL 23-7 romp

Jody Fink rapped two doubles and two singles to lead LLL to a 23-7 win over VMH in LARP Women's softball "C" League action Thursday evening.

Sue King backed Fink's performance with a triple and two singles, while Cookie Granille tripled and singled, Doris Watts singled twice, Atheon Brown singled and Jackie King singled. Linda Feil and Margaret Manchester added singles.

For the losers, Peggy Hidalgo doubled and singled, Mary Lenard singled twice and Susan Santucci and Maragret Elder each had two hits apiece.

Mary Fitzsimmons added a single.

American Pools methodically whipped Normandy Hair Design, 12-6.

Although Normandy's Marti Tompkins singled twice, doubled and tripled, Breda Hill and Donna Venturi homered for the winners, while Bonnie Lemon singled three times, Elaine Gibson and Sheryl Howe each doubled and singled. Cindy Henderson singled twice and Linda Martin tripled.

Besides Tompkins' efforts for Normandy, Eileen Patino tripled and singled, Carol Bitano doubled and singled and Sandy Esqibel singled twice.

The SRD's ripped the Lounge, 13-1. Pam Vasick doubled and singled, Penni Mafiehee singled twice, Corin Hansen had two singles and Sandi Chrisman, Dar Bumgartner, Brenda Lopez and Karen McGehee all singled.

For the Lounge, Marietta Perry singled and scored the only run, while Lou Eastman, Marge Sandoval and Mary Freeman all singled.

Local skateboard sessions conclude

The final two try-out sessions for amateur skateboarders who wish to participate in 15 days of exhibitions at the Alameda County Fair will be conducted today at 10 a.m. and at 2 p.m.

The try-outs emphasize freestyle technique and are open to persons of both sexes and all ages. Judging will be done by Russ Howell, a veteran of international professional competition, who will also demonstrate some advanced techniques at the sessions.

The exhibitions at the fair will be sponsored by the new Pleasanton Skate World park to be developed at the intersection of Inter-states 580 and 680. The new park will be supervised and sanctioned by the ASA.

All contestants who become park members will receive one hour of free skate-boarding at the park. In addition to performing in at least one of the 45 exhibitions near the Skate World booth at the fair, winners will receive a professional board and have the opportunity to join one of the amateur teams to be fielded by Skate World.

The Pleasanton teams expect to compete with others from Southern California, Florida and Hawaii.

Ground-breaking ceremonies for the park were tentatively slated for tomorrow.

Hayward's Craig Taylor hangs ten in Skateboard trials yesterday.

Bando's brother a hero

OMAHA, Neb. — Chris Bando cracked a seventh-inning go-ahead home run and Jerry Vasquez checked South Carolina on five hits Saturday night to lift Arizona State to a 2-1 victory in the championship game of the 31st College World Series.

Top-rated Arizona State, 57-12, earned its fourth series crown — but first since 1969 — in a pitchers' battle before a capacity crowd of 11,876.

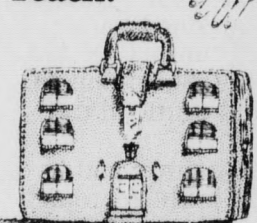

Vasquez, a junior right-hander who won two series games, struck out three and retired the last nine men in order after Steve King deadlocked the game with a lead-off home run in the seventh.

In the bottom of the inning, Bando, younger brother of major leaguer Sal Bando, lined an 0-1 pitch over the right field fence to give the Sun Devils the lead again.

Jim Lewis pitched a seven-inning shutout for South Carolina and struck out seven.

Mitchell back on Oakland

CHICAGO — Pleasanton's Paul Mitchell, the Oakland A's right-hander who feared he was being left to rot with the team's class AA Chatauqua farm club, has been recalled by the major league A's.

As the June 15 trade deadline passed him by, Mitchell had been upset by the fact that he had not been traded and was still two steps from the big leagues, after being demoted from the AAA San Jose Missions late last month.

But yesterday, Mitchell, and San Jose right-hander Doug Bair, were brought back up to the A's and joined the club in time for Friday's rainstorm.

Room was opened up on the roster after Dock Ellis was sold to the Texas Rangers.

Astros top Mets, 4-3

NEW YORK (AP) — The Houston Astros jumped on Jerry Koosman for a three-run sixth inning, highlighted by Jose Cruz' two-run double, and went on to defeat the New York Mets 4-3 Saturday on Cesar Cedeño's tie-breaking sacrifice fly in the seventh.

Koosman, 5-7, held a 3-0 lead going into the sixth with the help of home runs by John Milner and Ed Kranepool.

But Cedeño worked a walk off the left-hander to lead off the sixth and went to second on a single by Enos Cabell. The runners moved up on a double steal and both came home on Cruz' line drive double against the right field fence. After Joe Ferguson struck out, Bob Watson got Houston's tying run home with a single.

Julio Gonzalez led off the seventh with a triple and scored the winning run on Cedeño's sacrifice fly.

Scott homers to give Reds championship

Greg Scott singled and hit a home run, driving in a pair of runs to lead the Valley Realty Reds over the Elby's Auto Supply Padres, 12-2, in the 2nd half championship game of the Pleasanton National Little League Majors division. Besides playing error-less ball, the winners received three singles and two RBI's from Mike Nstrand and a pair of singles from Keith Stutler. Brett Howell scattered five hits to pick up the win. Jeff Wilson homered and singled with two RBI's for the losers, while Deron

Busch singled twice and Marty McGarry doubled for the Padres.

Jeff Jantzen homered, singled and drove in four runs to pace the Leroy McDonald Dodgers over the TeleVue Cubs, 9-4. Doug Bowker, who pitched three innings of no-hit ball, picked up the win. Tony Muljat singled twice and doubled, while Eric Aafedt, Steve Takota, Doug Hollister and Anthony Fabaria all singled.

Rob Wenzler and Pat Waters hit well for the Cubs. Although the scorekeeper failed to make it clear, Ed Hutka defeated J Sports Lettering 11-10 on Eddie Lopez' hit in the bottom of the sixth, after J Sports took a 10-9 lead into the frame.

Mike Robison singled twice and doubled for the winners, while Vince Martinez singled twice.

Greg Edwards singled twice and doubled for the losers, while Al Fonzet singled twice.

In Senior Major action, the Pleasanton Garbage Dodgers edged the Romley's Padres, 7-6, as Trino Victori smacked two doubles and Jon Anderson singled and hit a home run, driving in three runs. Bill Moffitt singled twice.

For the Padres, Chris Gaeckle doubled and Bill Serrao walloped a three-run homer. Bwyer singled to drive in two runs.

Winning pitcher Anderson struck out 11 batters.

In other Seniors action, Bruce's Paints Pirates edged the Can-Am Plumb-ing Cards, 13-9. Steve Woodward tripled and singled to drive in three runs. Doug Sankey singled and doubled with two RBI's and Jim Heinzel singled in two runs.

Dennis Golcher homered and doubled to highlight the Cub offensive attack, while Glen Nolan singled twice.

In AAA action, Swenson's Cubs gored the Bill Foster Dodgers, 10-8, as Ray Lopez, Kevin Addington and Bob Gelanis each singled. John Anderson had two RBI's while Rob Sato added an RBI.

Dave Serino added an RBI single for the Dodgers. Mike Boone, catcher for the Cubs, made a fine play at home.

In "AA" play, Peel's Dodgers nipped Corky's Cubs, 13-12, as Mike Maciorski ripped four hits and Sean Clancy had three. Rudy Paulina added two RBI's.

Dave Renner doubled twice and singled, driving in five runs for the Cubs, while John Butler doubled, Don Whitaker singled and Mike Sato singled twice. Aaron Muentz added a double play for the Cubs.

The Dorothy's Florist Reds powdered the Dolan Lumber Padres, 15-12, as an all-around team effort was indicated on the score-sheet which included no names for the winners.

For the Padres, Leanne Payne doubled twice and singled, Antonia Victoria singled twice and Joe Davis singled three times. Chip Senna, Joe Davis and Brian Devilbiss excelled in the field for the losers.

Harmon, Burton's hot

Harold Harmon hit two doubles while Joe Lamen-dola scattered three hits as Burton's ripped Straw Hat Pizza, 7-2, in Livermore American Little League majors play.

David Stockman singled twice and had an RBI for the winners, while Lamen-dola and Eddie Governor added singles. Jimmy Davis, Ron Paulo and Skip Freshman had the losers' lone safeties.

In Farm division play, J

Sports Lettering beat Bur-anis Construction, 14-12. Kenny Gruidl homered and had two singles and an RBI for the winners, while To-mas Jaques singled twice, Chris Monnastes singled and doubled for an RBI and Adam Smith stroked two singles.

Paul Faia doubled and tripled for the Construc-tion, while Tony Montez singled twice and doubled, Scott Mayo doubled twice and Paul King tripled and singled for a pair of RBI's.

Alden Lane Nursery wins shootout, 18-17

A good ol' fashioned slug-out took place in the Gran-ada Little League major division Thursday night, as Alden Lane Nursery scored nine runs in the sixth inning to knock off Groh Brothers Oldsmobile, 18-17.

Jeff Murray led the win-ning hitting attack with three singles and two RBI's, while Eric Kirkes added a triple and single, William Silva singled and Matt Walker added a base hit.

For Groh Brothers, Jim Daley tripled in three runs while Billy Tyler, Eric Tay-lor and Ron Sweet each doubled, Taylor with three RBI's.

Granada Pharmacy jumped out to a 5-0 lead and eased past Granada Har-dware, 7-5, as Keith Hall singled and had two doubles, driving in a run. Derrek Matthews singled and had three RBI's, while Kelly Brown tripled, singled and drove in two runs.

For the losers, Pete Scales doubled, Louie Aguiar singled home two runs, Greg Kuhn had an RBI single and Craig Huff singled. Dave Finster was the winning pitcher, out-dealing Gary Johnson.

VFW-Livermore roared to a 13-4 win over Allied Brokers. Mike Lynn, Jim McLaughlin and Brent Graham all stroked dou-bles while John Rourke laced a trio of singles.

Jerry Johnson doubled twice for the losers, while Chris Nadeau and Tom DiGiallonardo each singled. Dan Boggini's four-hitter was enough to pick up the victory.

Valley Office Equip-ment, behind a combined one-hitter from Gary Sta-pleton and Jeff Nichols, beat Granada Chevron 10-2.

Mark Long singled and doubled for two runs, while Jeff Holder and Jeff Ni-chols each had RBI singles and Tony Leonard singled. Ron Clark got Granada's only hit if the day, a double.

Snowden, Hellum lead Realtors

Sparky Snowden and Mark Hellum each smacked home runs, Hel-lum's a two-run shot, as the Estate Realtor's Yankees shutout the Angels 3-0 behind the three-hit pitching of Allan Larson and Richie Rollins in Pleasanton American Little League majors play last week.

Rollins, who singled to help the winners, had his fifth homer of the year called back when the um-pire signalled "no pitch" on the play. Snowden's homer was his fourth, as was Hel-lum's.

Steve Hickey made two outstanding plays at short-stop for the Yanks, while Chris Damaulos had two hits for the Angels.

The Yankees now have 13 homers on the season. Mike Healey and Da-maulos pitched an excel-lent game in defeat. Rollins relieved Larson midway through the contest.

The Robert Thomas Photo Red Sox edged the Valley Realty Angels, 8-6, in Senior League action.

John Costello singled twice and drove in a run, Mike Costello singled in two runs, Doug Holmes singled home a pair of tallies and Bob Jones laced two singles. Scott Perry added a hit for the winners.

Dave Gottschalk tripled and singled, driving in a pair of runs, while Gary Kovac and Pat Moyer each singled twice for the losers, Kovac adding an RBI.

Winning pitcher Alan Farrant won his eighth game of the year against no defeats, while Dan Schaefer and Bob Lamber made key catches in the outfield in the last inning to save the win.

Something new for buyers

Final phase of Pleasanton Valley

Morrison Homes final phase of Pleasanton Valley features three and four bedroom homes in the $80,000 to $100,000 range, the latest in luxury living.

"There is good news for new home seekers who have become discouraged by the shortage of quality new homes in the Pleasanton area," according to Don Franks Sales Manager of the Pleasanton Valley home community. "Morrison Homes has announced the final phase of three and four bedroom single family homes at Pleasanton Valley in Pleasanton, with a select group of homes available for immediate sale."

Franks added: "These new homes come as a boon to buyers in the mid $80,000 to $100,000 price range, as they are an impressive collection of one and two story residences all situated on pool-size lots." Morrison Homes, a leader in the building industry since 1947, noted for innovative designs and high quality workmanship has created exciting architectural concepts at Pleasanton Valley.

Vaulted and cathedral ceilings with exposed wood beams, ceramic tile entries, extra wide halls and stairways with wrought iron railings and stained wood caps are only a few of the custom architectural touches that distinguish these homes.

The generous list of features included as standard in all models, include formal dining rooms with chandeliers and dimmer switches, informal breakfast nooks, extra-large linen closets and inside storage, spacious master suites with compartmented dressing area and bath and shower over tub at the second bath, wood burning fireplaces with stone facing, sliding glass patio doors with security lock and tempered safety glass in the family rooms, stained hardwood cabinets in kitchens, pantries and baths, and plus pile carpeting throughout living rooms, dining rooms, family rooms, and bedrooms, as well as halls, stairs, wardrobes, closets and dressing areas.

All Pleasanton Valley kitchens are equipped with luminous ceilings, Armstrong "Castilian" cushioned vinyl (which is also in some breakfast nooks), deluxe Whirlpool double ovens, with black glass doors, brushed chrome cook top with decorative black hood, dishwasher with black door, heavy duty Insinkerator disposer and stainless steel sink.

Additionally, single level sink controls, full-width mirrors adorn all vanities, pantry and bath cabinets are of stained, hand finished ash, and lavish use of ceramic tile highlights showers, tubs and kitchen counter tops. Utilities and cable

Heritage-Gallery joins ranks of Pleasanton real estate

THE GALLERY OF HOMES

Heritage-Gallery of Homes became the newest real estate firm in Pleasanton in the past 2 months. Joining the new firm are: (left to right), Deanna Gordon, Raelene Sprague, Bonnie Wills, Shirley Slabaugh, Jack Bergin, Carole Kelly, Norma Andrus. Superlatives are all that can be applied to the work being done by the Super Sales Staff. Top honors for sales for the last couple of months, go to Shirley Slabaugh for the month of April with $334,900 of sales & listings, and Jack Bergin for the month of May with $340,700 of business. Congratulations to the entire fine Gallery staff for doing a total dollar volume in excess of 2 million dollars in the 2 months it has been opened. All sales counselors have been trained in Heritage Realtor's own two week seminar workshop.

First step to top ranking

Realtors Michael L. Anest, Dale B. Miller, and Daniel O'Neill, and Realtor-Associates Virginia Clary, Betty Hensell, Karen McGagin, Harry M. Molz, Susanna Schlendorf, and Charles F. Wright, of the Southern Alameda County Board of Realtors, have completed Course I on their way to the nationally recognized designation — Graduate, Realtors Institute — awarded by the Realtors Institute Division of the 98,000 member California Association of Realtors, it was announced today by Henry J. Cupples, Jr., president of the Southern Alameda County Board of Realtors.

Earning this certificate requires completion of 30 hours of specialized real estate educational courses offered by C.A.R. on subjects included in Course I such as: Introduction and organized structure of real estate, urban growth, legal and ethical environment, listing, selling and personal and career management.

A chance for consumer to air those gripes

Thousands of Americans buy and sell homes every day and for most, these transactions represent the largest investment they will ever make.

But, are they happy with the outcome?

As the voice of the American consumer grows louder and legislative support grows even stronger, business and industry are pressing hard to make public opinion an integral part of their corporate "think tanks."

Free enterprise is responding to these pressures by providing different approaches for gathering both complaints and compliments on services and products. These vehicles for ventilating vary in size and cost, ranging from simple consumer comments on quality and service at the marketplace, to fully staffed consumer relations offices.

Successful real estate firms have long recognized the importance of customer satisfaction since a high percentage of their sales volume is attributed to repeat business and referrals.

Where does the home buyer or seller turn when they encounter the exception to this rule?

Henry F. Carter, president of Gallery of Homes, Inc., a real estate franchise organization with members covering 5,000 communities throughout the United States and Canada, offers several suggestions to the real estate public.

"First," said Carter, "go to your local board of Realtors or to the State real estate commission. Usually," he continued, "these disputes can be settled before reaching a civil court."

"Complaints involving any of the more than 600 independent brokers in our network can also be directed to us. The fact is," Carter said, "while members sold over five billion dollars in residential real estate last year, very few comments came into our National office. I think it's important to know when you've done a good job or how you could do better next time."

Because of this philosophy, the company recently launched a million dollar campaign enabling consumers to air their comments on prime time television.

Outlining the plan, Carter said that home buyers and sellers working with Gallery of Homes receive a questionnaire pertaining to the service they were given. Then, questionnaires are mailed directly to the NBC television network by the customer where they are stored in a bin and drawn at random by the announcer who read the comments on "The Tonight Show".

Hundreds of completed questionnaires have already been sent to NBC.

The commercial will run once a week through November; and who knows, it may set a whole new trend in advertising.

Support energy program

The National Association of Realtors expressed general support for portions of the President's energy plan dealing with conservation in the home, and described its own program to promote energy conservation.

Harry G. Elmstrom, president of the 500,000 member association, testified before the Housing Subcommittee of the Housing Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee, which is holding hearings on H.R. 6831, the National Energy Act.

Elmstrom applauded voluntary aspects of the President's energy program, saying that a mandatory program for retrofitting existing homes would not be accepted by the public. But he added that it is essential that homeowners be convinced of the real need to install insulation and otherwise conserve energy.

"To this end, the National Association of Realtors has launched an ambitious energy conservation program designed to raise public awareness regarding the need for conservation in the residential sector," he said. "Realtors throughout the nation will present material and information at the settlement table to encourage the new homeowners to conserve energy. Material has been sent out and will continue to be sent to our more than 1,750 local boards of Realtors."

Specifically, Elmstrom said, Realtors can support these provisions of H.R. 6831:

The requirement that public utilities offer residential customers an energy conservation program, with adequate safeguards as to honest workmanship and reasonable cost.

Amendments to the National Housing Act, which would qualify loans for energy conservation and solar energy installation for Federal Housing Administration (FHA) insurance.

Increased funding for the weatherization program under the Energy Conservation and Production Act.

Adoption of reasonable energy conservation performance standards for new buildings, with federal grants to state and local governments to assist them in implementing such standards.

Tax credits to homeowners to induce the purchase and installation of energy conservation items and solar equipment.

Utility rate reform, designed to ensure the efficient use of our generating capacity.

However, Elmstrom expressed strong Realtor opposition to two proposals he said Congress may be asked to approve. One he identified as the use of sanctions to force adoption of the energy standards for new construction.

"One sanction that our association has opposed consistently is the prohibition of conventional lending by financial institutions chartered or insured by the government," he said.

"This is the sanction that the House of Representatives recently removed from the federal flood insurance program. I strongly believe that sanction goes too far.

"Holding depositors' money hostage goes against the grain of our monetary system, and the traditional parameters of federal power."

Elmstrom also cautioned Congress against requiring that homes be brought up to a standard of energy conservation before being sold.

He cited a Minnesota legislative proposal requiring that homes sold either would be up to standard, or money would be placed in escrow to bring it to standard.

"The Minnesota Realtors expressed their concerns to the legislature about possible lengthy delays in transactions," Elmstrom told the Congressmen. "Such a program would place an undue burden on sellers, and inevitably a costly inspection process would have to be implemented.

After study, the Minnesota legislature removed the mandatory retrofit provisions due to myriad problems such as an approach could bring about."

Apart from such potential problems, he said, the National Association of Realtors generally supports those portions of the bill which deal with energy conservation in the home.

"The plan seems to offer homeowners of all income levels ample opportunity to purchase and install energy conservation items in their homes," Elmstrom said. "We are encouraged by the voluntary approach in H.R. 6831. We are confident that, given the proper incentives, the American people will respond to the need to conserve energy in the home."

Real estate author's view of climbing prices in California

Investor demand has had little to do with skyrocketing home prices in California, according to Realtor and author, Dave Glubetich.

In a recent speech to 300 people at the Contra Costa Board of Realtors, Glubetich said there are several reasons for the price increases of homes, but that savings and loans and some news reporters are looking for a scapegoat.

Home prices in many California communities have jumped over 25 percent during the past year, compared to less than 10 percent average for the rest of the nation.

Glubetich named seven reasons for the escalating value of single family homes in California: cost of living increases; new construction costs; supply and demand in the housing market; larger family incomes due to more working wives; increase in the number of real estate investors; home buyer attitude of buying now rather than later; and high appraisals by banks and savings and loans.

"The savings and loans are running out of money to lend," according to Glubetich, "although they don't like to admit it. They're increasing interest rates to cool down the demand for home loans, but they're penalizing investors by making them pay even high interest rates and down payments."

Dave Glubetich is a Realtor in Pleasanton Hill. He is the author of The Monopoly Game, a book about making money with rental homes. He has gained exposure as a spokesman for real estate investors, through a series of investment seminars he recently completed, and through newspaper, magazines, and T.V. interviews.

Elaborating on his seven points, Glubetich said that his first explanation of price increases was related to the government's cost of living index. "It is only reasonable to assume that homes will increase in value at a rate at least equivalent to the cost of living increases, which have averaged well over 6 percent during the past eight years."

"Secondly, the cost of new construction also has a pulling effect on the prices of used homes. When a new 3 bedroom home sells for $60,000 then you can expect that the seller of a used 3 bedroom home will get the same price."

"And, the cost of new construction is high because of a myriad of local government requirements, such as underground utilities, and requiring builders to set aside land for schools and parks. The government is therefore directly responsible for much of the higher cost of new construction."

The third reason listed by Glubetich as a cause for unusually high price increases in California was supply and demand. He said that children born after the Korean War are having a big effect on the nation real estate market.

"As many as 2,500,000 people will be entering the employment and housing picture during each of the next ten years, but new housing starts are lagging behind, thereby causing an increased demand for housing and a short supply," according to Glubetich.

He also observed that partially due to the heating fuel shortage in the mid-west and northeast there is a massive migration trend to the sun belt and western states. "This migration trend probably explains the extra pressures on California real estate values more than any other single factor," said Glubetich.

"Fourthly, half of the nation's wives now work, and only in the past few years has their income been fully accepted by lenders in qualifying for home payments." This fourth reason, theorized Glubetich, unleashed a tremendous rush on lenders by families who now could afford to buy a bigger and better home thanks to the equal credit bill.

A fifth reason for price hikes, admits Glubetich, is the ever increasing number of investors and short term speculators that have entered the real estate market. But Glubetich was quick to point out that this reason was only one of seven that explains the California situation.

The Federal income tax schedules

The working wife opened up market

have not been changed for years, so most families are caught between the rising cost of living and rising tax brackets. "Because of this, he said, "many people are reluctantly investing in real estate for a tax shelter, just to survive."

"Largely because of all the publicity given to rising home prices," Glubetich said that "many non-investor home owners have decided to sell at the high prices available and buy a bigger and better home before prices go out of sight." This sixth reason (he buy now philosophy) has added a lot to housing pressures that have helped to push prices upwards," Glubetich said.

The last reason advanced was a criticism leveled at the lending institutions. Glubetich pointed out that when the California housing market was largely government insured (FHA and VA) the appraised values were held down. "An FHA appraiser could be quite stingy with his estimates of value," Glubetich said.

"But as most of California shifted to conventional financing," he said, "the savings and loans competed with one another for business. This led to a very loose policy with regard to appraisals. To get the loan many lenders would appraise a home several thousand dollars above the true value. This valuation would then be used a few weeks later to justify another and even higher valuation."

"It's ironic," Glubetich said, "that the lenders are now running low on funds earmarked for real estate loans." To a large degree it was their earlier generosity that helped to bring about today's dilemma," he said.

Glubetich concluded by saying that he feels home prices will probably continue to increase over the summer because the demand for homes is real and it still remains strong. He predicted that in the near future home prices will advance at a rate more closely parallel to the cost of living index.

TV are under ground, and patios are equipped with weather-proof electrical outlet.

Individual selections of exterior architectural styles, entry ceramic tile, kitchen ceramic tile counter top and carpet colors, vinyl flooring colors and patterns, fireplace stone facing colors and dining room chandeliers are by the home buyer.

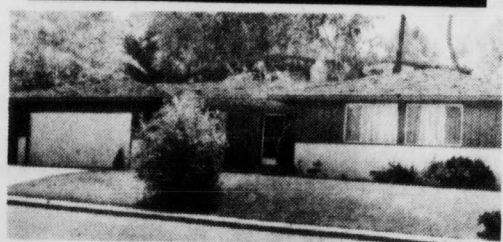

In addition, Pleasanton Valley homes incorporate unique energy conservation measures that conform to Pacific Gas and Electric's new "Energy Conservation Home" program. These energy saving items will save the home owner approximately 20% annually on utility bills, based on PG&E estimates of normal use in a 1450 square foot home.

Energy saving items include: 3 1/2 gallon flush capacity toilets, set-back thermostat, gas furnace with pilotless ignition system, clogged heater filter indicator, thermal protected wall and ceiling insulation, "Energy Master" water heater, insulated hot water piping, flow control shower heads and a select dry cycle on the dishwasher.

Pleasanton Valley homes, covered by Morrison Homes' 12-month warranty, are in the heart of one of the most charming communities in the East Bay. Still rural, it maintains a "small town" atmosphere which is carried out in its excellent schools and attention to youth through its comprehensive, supervised youth sport programs.

HAPPY FATHER'S DAY
FROM THE TIMES
"His home is his castle"

Solar homes: fable to fact

Solar panels on the roof, center, of this futuristic Walnut Creek House were working Wednesday while officials from co-developers PG&E and the Woolridge Organization, dedicated the house. The house now open to the public.

SAN FRANCISCO — Solar energy, once the dream of science fiction writers is no longer the pipe dream of an overactive imagination, "Solar energy is here," according to a leading Southern California builder.

But is it just a trend? A trend that sparks the production of highly experimental projects, gadgets powered by the sun with no real practical application, lengthy interpretive magazine articles and quick get-rich schemes.

No, solar energy is fact and it is being applied by forward-looking home builders. A Pacific Builders Conference panel here last week declared that solar energy is no longer fiction, it's fact and it can be used effectively in production line homes.

According to a projection made by Dr. Ronald Doctor, commissioner, State Energy Resources Conservation & Development Commission, by 1985 there will be 2 million solar homes in California.

The commission told his PCBC audience that President Carter's energy program proposal calls for 2.5 million "solar" homes by that date.

By "solar" homes, Dr. Doctor, a former Rand Corp., researcher, said these residences would be energy-saving, solar-assisted homes. Homes where principal source for heating, air conditioning, domestic water and swimming pools.

The total solar home is still in the future and Dr. Doctor said it would probably be near the turn of the century before the sun would turn on a homeowner's lights.

Solar-assisted homes will cost more money than conventional energy homes. Don Schulz of Mission Viejo Co., Mission Viejo, whose company is ready to build production solar-assisted homes, estimated the cost hike to be between $2,000 and $3,000.

However, the commissioner told the Times he believes the added cost of solar home system would be at least $5,000 and may be even $7,000.

Top pro

Ralph Laughlin was April's top salesman for Regan Realtors in Livermore. He has been selling real estate for 11 years and specializes in open land and ranches as well as single family homes. He was mistakenly identified in The Times in a previous addition. The paper apologizes for the error.

But Dr. Doctor added the homeowner would have the cost/effectiveness factor of utility bill savings and tax and possible mortgage benefits from using the system.

Doctor told builders that "we have the capability and the problems are resolvable." He praised the state building industry for its "excellent job" in responding to energy conservation and solar-assisted homes.

Schulz showed slides of Mission Viejo's pilot solar homes. He said the company built two. One for show and the other was occupied by a family. Schulz said that after eight months of testing, the solar home, showed a savings of 50 per cent in energy costs.

The Orange County building executive explained his firm used insulation, special glass windows and a steel door to make the homes energy saving.

The Mission Viejo project used special Owens-Illinois solar collectors and not the usual flat collector. After several experiments with the solar system, Mission Viejo developed a home that has its "air conditioner set at 78 degrees and has never gone on even on days when the temperature registered the 100-degree mark.

Ed Kaitz of Ditz/Crane Homes, Santa Clara, a Bay Area builder involved in the production of energy-saving, solar-assisted homes, said the question is "will the home-buying public accept the solar home and its costs voluntarily or will it take law?"

(Commissioner Doctor said the commission is very "aggressive" of solar system application in the home building industry.)

Kaitz said Ditz/Crane solar experiments involved four systems before it was satisfied.

The area builder said the industry must work on reducing solar system costs and have building codes revised to allow solar home applications.

Kaitz said, "With our climate solar energy is a natural."

The sun was one of the first "friends" of the cave-man and in the future it will become an even greater friend to the homeowner of this and the next century.

As builder Schultz said, "It's the future."

U.S., state water talks encouraging

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — California will have more say in federal water projects in the state, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. said after a breakfast meeting with Vice President Walter Mondale.

"We're getting much closer to resolving our water differences. There is clearly a new policy at the federal government level of giving due and appropriate weight to what the state wants," Brown said.

At an impromptu news conference in a hotel lobby after their one-hour private breakfast, Mondale deferred all water questions to Brown, who repeatedly cited what he described as "a new spirit of cooperation" with the Carter Administration.

Brown said no specific agreements were reached over such sticky questions as whether the state may impose conditions on federal water projects or require that the federal government guarantee a minimum water flow in the Sacramento - San Joaquin Delta.

"We just had a Saturday morning breakfast chat. The point is not to arrive at some complicated, negotiated agreement, but rather to improve the lines of communication and bring the federal and state government closer together," Brown said.

"Over the years, the state Water Quality Control Board and the federal Bureau of Reclamation have been at loggerheads. They've been constantly fighting. For the first time, the Secretary of Interior (Cecil Andrus) has indicated very forcefully that the views of California are going to be considered."

Take free peek at future

WALNUT CREEK — Central Contra Costa County residents will have a chance to take a free peek at a home of the future beginning today.

Spell it SOLAR. The home, at the corner of Arbolado and Whitehaven Drives in the Carriage Hills development in eastern Walnut Creek, will tap the sun for up to 70 percent of its heating and air conditioning needs.

Built by the Woolridge Organization and Pacific Gas and Electric, it is one of three solar homes sponsored by PG&E in California. Solar systems were designed by Jack Schultz of Solar Utilities, San Diego.

The home will be open for public inspection seven days weekly except holidays. Hours will be noon to 5 p.m. After one year, it will be sold on the open market. Officials present at a formal unveiling Tuesday said the four bedroom ranchstyle home should sell in the $90,000 to $100,000 range.

That price, they estimated, included $15,000 for the cost of the solar heating and air conditioning devices.

The house, PG&E experts noted with pride Tuesday, is a house of the future from the ground up. The 2,300 square foot structure is oriented in a precise southward direction to maximize solar reception. The key to the home is on the roof where experts have mounted 34 solar collector panels — covering 624 square feet.

Each collector is a sandwich, topped by a layer of glass, containing copper tubing filled with water.

Basically designer Schultz told reporters Wednesday, the sun heats water in the tubing and circulates downward to a specially insulated 1,800 gallon storage tank buried beneath the two car garage.

When the temperature drops, a thermostat inside the house calls for heat and the water is pumped electrically to heat exchanger coils beside air fan units in the living and sleeping areas of the house. The water heats air next to the fans, then the fans deliver the heated air into the house.

The storage tank holds enough hot water at 120 to 160 degrees F to heat the house through two sunless days.

A separate heat exchange system within the buried storage tank also heats a 40 gallon tank to provide household hot water. The system includes a device which mixes the hot water with cold to prevent delivering scalding water to a user inside the house.

The air conditioning system, meanwhile, uses the solar collectors at night. Water in the tubes in the collectors is chilled by the night air and is delivered to a second specially insulated tank beneath the garage.

When air conditioning is needed the next day the stored cool water goes to the same heat exchanger beside the fan units. The air is chilled by the cool water and the fans deliver the cooled air to the house.

The futuristic house, Schultz explained, also uses the sun to heat the swimming pool.

Home buys high in April

The strong resurgence of the existing single-family home market has continued through April, the National Association of Realtors reports.

In the association's monthly existing home sales report, Kenneth J. Kerin, director of the Department of Economics and Research, says that 310,000 resale transactions took place in April, with a total market value of more than $14 billion. By either measure — volume or price — this is the best April on record and the second best sales month ever, Kerin said.

April figures translate into a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3,300,000 units, slightly behind the March rate of 3,410,000, but still 17.4 per cent over the year-ago level.

"The existing home market is following a long expansionary cycle," Kerin said. "After reaching a cyclical low of 2,000,000 units in January, 1975, the resale market's annual rate began a general upswing which has continued for 27 months."

"In the most recent nine months, the annualized rate of sales has exceeded 3,000,000 units. We expect this robust sales pace to continue."

The April sales rate, by regions of the nation, goes somewhat against recent experience, the report indicates.

On an annualized basis, the Northeast increased to 480,000, 10,000 over the March rate, and the North Central region jumped 30,000 to 980,000.

However the South showed a 60,000 unit drop to 1,250,000, and the West declined by 100,000 to 590,000. However, all four regions were up substantially from the April 1976 figures: the Northeast, 40,000; the North Central, 190,000; the South, 200,000; and the West, 70,000.

Tri-Valley

Sandi Chavez and Rich Souza are new additions to TriValley Brokers in Dublin. Rich is single, and has lived in Dublin for the past five years. He is a newcomer to the real estate business.

Existing single-family home prices continued to advance, as the median price rose by $1,000 to $42,000, according to the report, with much of this increase attributable to inflation in the West. The median price in April for the U.S. was 11.4 per cent over that for April 1976.

Western home prices continued to rise at more than twice the national rate, the report reveals. In that region the April median of $57,200 was up $3,800 from March and $12,200 over the April, 1976, figure. The April-to-April increase was 27.1 per cent.

In other regions, the increases were more moderate, the report says. In the Northeast, the one-month rise in the median price was $200 to $43,500; in the North Central, $800 to $35,900; and in the South, $500 to $39,400.

Over the past 12 months, the increases, with the percentage rise in brackets, were: Northeast 2,000 (4.8 per cent); North Central, $3,600 (11.1 per cent); and South, $3,100 (8.5 per cent). The substantial increase in home prices during the past four years has greatly increased the percentage of homes selling in the upper price ranges, the Realtor researchers report. Currently, more than one-third of all resale homes sell for $50,000 or more, contrasting with slightly more than 10 per cent four years ago.

Again, much of that rise is due to the price inflation in the Western region, where 61.6 per cent of home sales in April were at $50,000 and above. In the Northeast, the figure was 37.4 per cent; North Central region, 20.9 per cent; and the South, 32.4 per cent.

The report reveals a slight increase in the long-standing popularity of the three-bedroom home, with 56.1 per cent of homes sold in April in that size category, compared with 55.4 per cent in March. The percentage remained about level in three of the four regions, but rose in the West from 51.2 per cent in March to 52.9 per cent in April.

How your home can live to old age

Some wooden houses seem to develop decay problems shortly after construction while others keep their composure and are still standing after 300 years.

The U.S. Forest Service says wood will not deteriorate if properly used. If misused it succumbs to the same processes that decay fallen logs in the woods.

The Forest Service has prepared two booklets to help your house live to a ripe old age. "Your Wood Can Last for Centuries" explains the process of decaying and how to avoid it.

"You Can Protect Your Home from Termites" deals with that tiny pest.

Both booklets are for sale from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402. The termite booklet costs 60 cents; the volume on wood is $1.

Real estate grads

Congratulations to Jan Lemm and Janet Piper of Harris Realty for their successful completion of a highly specialized course on Real Estate investment and taxation in San Diego. During six days of intensive study, Jan and Janet concentrated on financing and income tax benefits for today's investor in income-producing real estate, to further advance their knowledge in assisting their clients. Congratulations also go to Jan Lemm, Harris Realty's Associate of the Month for May, for having participated in $322,900 worth of real estate sales. In the first 5 months of 1977, Jan's real estate transactions have totaled $1,025,000. A sincere interest in helping all her clients has made Jan a real Harris Realty expert.

Cocktail's Birth
The first cocktail was said to have been served in 1776 by Betsy Flanagan, a barmaid at Halls Corners, Elmsford, New York, who decorated the bar with tail feathers. An inebriate called for a glass of "those cocktails" so she prepared a mixed drink and inserted one of the feathers.

Blood bank donathon in Oakland draws celebrities

Celebrities attending the upcoming Blood Bank Donathon in Oakland will include Dr. Don Rose of KFRC, Hap Harper of KNBR, McArthur Lane of the Kansas City Chiefs, Ray Chester of the Baltimore Colts, Al Andrews formerly of the Memphis Tams and Sherman White of the Buffalo Bills.

"Wee Pals" cartoonist Maury Turner will be on hand to "doodle" autographs. There will also be Deanna Crowe of KNEW, Joe Ellis of the Oakland A's, Ike Lasiter of the Oakland Raiders, Sam Robinson of the University of Utah and Don Barnette of the Harlem Globetrotters stopping by during the two-day blood collection effort.

In preparation for the blood - costly Fourth of July Weekend, the effort will be held 7:30 a.m. Thursday, June 30, straight through until 4 p.m. Friday, July 1 at 6230 Claremont Ave.,

Oakland.

Donors will receive "Donathon '77" T-shirts and will be eligible to participate in drawings for Bill Graham concert tickets and other prizes donated by radio stations KNEW and K - 101.

Area blood bank meets standards

The Alameda - Contra Costa Medical Association's blood bank has been accredited for another two-year period.

The American Association of Blood Banks (AABB) certification confirms that the level of medical - technical and administrative performance within the blood bank meets or exceeds the standards established by the board.

The purpose of the voluntary inspection and accreditation program includes elevating the standards of practice within the blood bank which assures superior service to blood donors and increased safety in human blood transfusion to patients. Accreditation is based on results obtained from a comprehensive physical inspection.

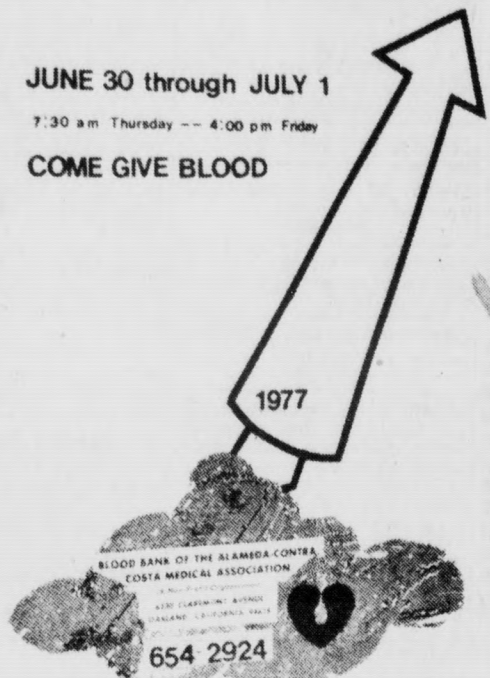

The Blood Bank serving Alameda and Contra Costa County hospitals is located at 6230 Claremont Ave., Oakland, and makes frequent blood collections in the Valley with their mobile units.
